WLB DEMANDS MINE WORKERS OBEY ORDERS

Brig. Gen. Nathan Forrest Missing in Kiel Raid

Hope Held Out
Flying Officer
May Be Prisoner

Leader of Great Bomber Attack Last Seen in Crippled Plane

Played Leading Part in Expansion of American Program

LONDON, Friday, June 25 (AP)—
Brig. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, grandfather and namesake of the famed confederate general, was last seen in one of history's most aerial fights during the last American daylight attack on Kiel, Germany.

An official announcement today said the 38-year-old general, who served as an observer on heavy bombers which led the assault, as missing.

It was said, however, that Forrest,
one of America's youngest generals, might have come through alive even though his plane was shot down and hundreds of enemy planes were to meet the American raiders.
Greatest Air Battle
The Kiel attack has been described officially as the greatest air battle over Europe. In a twin blow to Kiel and Bremen that day the Americans lost twenty-four bombers.
Forrest, as chief of staff for Major-Gen. Robert Olds, commander of the second air force in the United States, played an important role in the development and expansion of the heavy bombardment program.

The young general was the first American of his rank to become a combat casualty in this theater. His plane was shot down by a German fighter, and he was seen falling from the sky. He was last seen in a crippled plane, and it was believed he was missing or killed in the battle.

May Have Survived
There was a possibility that those board the general's bomber may have survived—providing they escaped the enemy's fire. Returned members of the leading squadrons which bore the brunt of the enemy attacks said they saw Forrest's damaged plane, one engine smoking badly and a tail section partially cut off, straggle from the bitterly fought formations and spiral downward several thousand feet, falling under control.

Of the numerous crewmen interviewed, however, none said he was able to watch the general's fortress fall from the sky.
"We were too damn busy fighting those German so-and-soes to watch the bombers that got hit and tumbled out of the formations," was the succinct summary of their reports, which added that clouds and smoke made it difficult to see.

Robertson Flays FDR's Draft Plan

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—
Senator Robertson said today that President Roosevelt's proposal to draft the age group of 18 to 21 was obviously a subterfuge reason for ending the Smith-Connally anti-strike legislation.
"This bill becomes law at midnight tomorrow night unless Mr.
Roosevelt vetoes it."
President Roosevelt, of course, has no idea that Congress would ever enact his proposal to amend the Selective Service act and bring almost every adult in the country below sixty-five years of age under executive control. It is a slave labor proposal," Robertson said in statement.

Morgenthau Hints Invasion Will Take Place within a Few Weeks

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—A new hint that Europe will be invaded this year came today from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.
The treasury head, in addressing a letter to war bond salesmen for a major campaign to start September 9, said:
"During the coming months we are going to be faced with a few new hurdles (in selling bonds), but believe they are chiefly temporary, and I think they will be offset by the enthusiasm that will come with the invasion of Europe."

HITLER'S "ATLANTIC WALL"

BLASTED IN DAYLIGHT RAID

From 400 to 500 Bombers Attack Important Positions and Follow Up with Furious Night Attack

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON, Friday, June 25 (AP)—The Allied air forces pounded Hitler's "Atlantic wall" defenses with from 400 to 500 bombers and fighters by daylight Thursday in one of the busiest day offensives yet launched in the new stepped-up air war over Europe, and then quickly returned to the attack after dark to keep the battering assault on a round-the-clock basis.

Attack in Waves
Late last night waves of heavy bombers were heard roaring across the southeast coast toward the continent, flying at a great height.
Coastal observers said the noise of their engines was incessant for a long time as they headed across the channel for the Axis targets.

These two attacks—the big daylight raids, which stretched from The Netherlands to the Cherbourg peninsula of France, and the night flights—followed a spectacular bombing of the Italian naval base of La Spezia by a New England-Africa shuttle technique.

Six types of Allied craft churning the air in swarms carried out the big daylight attack, bombing Nazi airfields and war installations along the French, Belgian and Dutch coasts.

P-47 Thunderbolts, the fastest and heaviest-gunned United States single seat fighters, joined Spitfires, Typhoons and American-made Venturus and Bostons of the RAF in the virtually unprecedented day sweeps.

La Spezia Pounded La Spezia was pounded early today by several squadrons of Lancaster bombers in a surprise assault after these same planes had smashed at Friedrichshafen in Southern Germany Sunday night and then flown on to North Africa to rest and refuel. The flight inaugurated a shuttle of great potentialities.

Today's targets in the furious daylight battering launched from Britain were oil storage tanks in Flushing, Holland, and in French freight yards at St. Omer, an airfield at nearby Fort Rouge, the airfield at Abbeville and another at Maupertus near Cherbourg.

The hard-hitting Allied planes ruled the skies during the attack, beating off the best efforts of German day fighters to break up the operation.

The Thunderbolts shot down one Focke-Wulf 190, and damaged another, while RAF Spitfires downed

Flying Fortress Crashes into Sea, Crew All Rescued

"Old Ironsides," Riddled with Bullets, Unable To Reach Home

LONDON, June 24 (AP)—The Flying Fortress "Old Ironsides," riddled from nose to tail with bullets after 150 fights with Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitts lasting 105 minutes, crashed into the North Sea off the Belgian coast while returning from Tuesday's attack on Huls, it was disclosed today, but the crew was rescued within thirty minutes.

The men were picked up from dinghies by an RAF high speed rescue launch while two Spitfires circled overhead. Four of the crew had been in one dinghy for fifteen minutes and the others had only just clambered into theirs which they had inflated with difficulty.

"Old Ironsides" was on its first mission. The crew included Second Lieutenant Chauncey Hicks of Huntington, W. Va., bombardier; Technical Sergeant James F. Osborne, Huntington, W. Va., radio operator; and Staff Sergeant Russell D. Hutton, Baltimore, Md., ball turret gunner.

Three Engines Out
When "Old Ironsides" was finally ditched three engines were out of commission, the tail wheel was blown off, the landing gear dragging, the hydraulic system out of order, the radio transmitter hit, the top of the vertical tail shot off, the pilot controls useless and all the windows in the cockpit and nose were blasted out.

After many attacks on the way to and from the target "Old Ironsides" was losing height at the rate of 100 feet a second over Holland and was down to 5,000 feet when Peek ordered the men to throw out the guns and ammunition.

After the guns were gone two Focke-Wulfs continued the attack on the helpless plane.
When the Fortress hit the water it broke in two.

Hicks told of one 20mm shell which hit the nose gun he was firing. "It knocked me clear back against the navigator, tore off my oxygen mask and inflated my life vest," he said.

Then He Shot Better
"Fragments hit the side of my face and burst my eardrum. I was lying on the floor shaking like a leaf but when I looked out I saw more Focke-Wulfs coming in. I got back to my gun and started shooting better than ever because I knew they were out to get me.
That's when I nailed my second F.W."

The crew reported destroying five German planes during the running battle.

Rep. Clare Boothe Luce Charges
FDR Is 'Renegade Interventionist'

Connecticut Congresswoman Says President Was Once Isolationist

By HOWARD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—
Blonde Rep. Clare Boothe Luce
(R-Conn.) stirred the House to tumultuous debate today by declaring that President Roosevelt was once the world's "outstanding isolationist" and has now become a "renegade interventionist."

Catcalls and rebel yells punctuated the debate that followed her charge that the administration has no foreign policy at all. She called for a positive policy for the post-war era, including "a strong military alliance, or non-aggression pact, with Great Britain and the self-governing members of the British commonwealth."

Unable to Complete Speech
She was unable to complete her thirty-minute speech because of interruptions from Republicans, who relished her remarks, and Democrats, who objected.

Coal Rationing May Be Ordered, Ickes Declares

Believes Government Will Operate the Mines for a Long Time

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—
Secretary Ickes said today that coal rationing may be necessary as a result of production losses due to the strikes and, in anticipation that the government will have to operate the mines for a considerable time, disclosed plans to take a more active hand in their management.

In connection with the latter move, the interior secretary and fuel administrator asked twenty-nine major mine owners to meet with him here tomorrow. We hoped, he told them in a telegram, that the miners' wage controversy would be settled quickly and the mines returned to their private owners, but indications were that "the government will be compelled to continue custody and operation of the mines for a considerable period of time."

Will Be Active Supervisor
"In the present circumstances," Ickes added, "it is essential to protect the government's interest in the operation of the mines that I undertake active participation in the supervision of management and operation of the mines."

In the coal fields, meantime, thousands of miners continued to remain away from the pits despite instructions from the United Mine Workers' Policy committee and John L. Lewis, union president, to go back to work.

Voices against going back to work were cast by some local unions in the face, too, of President Roosevelt's warning that the government will follow a policy of drafting striking miners in government-operated facilities.

Announcing this policy yesterday,
Mr. Roosevelt said he would ask authority to draft men up to age sixty-five for non-combat military service. Many members of Congress interpreted this as meaning strikers might be put into uniform and sent back to work at an army private's pay of $30 a month.

May Ration Coal
Ickes told a press conference that rationing or some allocation system might have to be established to assure fair distribution of coal. He indicated that if this was done it might be limited to certain areas rather than made national-wide.

A shortage might become more acute in some sections than in others, he remarked, owing to transportation problems. He pointed out that the northwest depends heavily on Great Lakes shipping for movement of coal, and if supplies are not laid in before ice forms in the lakes that section "might be the first hit."

BOMBING OF GERMAN PLANTS MAY CHANGE HITLER'S PLANS

Destruction of Industrial Areas Believed To Have Made Drive against Russia Unlikely

By WILLIAM F. FYRE

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—The blasting of German industrial areas by Allied bombers in repeated assaults from British bases may already have wrecked Axis plans for a great summer offensive in Russia, secretary of War Stimson suggested today.

Reporting that recent raids by both British and American bombers against German targets had been met by strong forces of enemy fighters, Stimson told a press conference this indicated Germany had found it necessary to concentrate much of her fighter plane strength to protect industrial and military installations on the home front.

"It is probable," he said, "that many of these planes were withdrawn from the eastern front, which may be one reason why Germany has not yet launched a summer offensive in Russia."

Axis Delay Unexplained
The hull on the Russian front was described by the secretary as "extraordinary" in view of the fact that the weather for several weeks has favored major military operations, and the Axis has more than 200 divisions there.

Another possible explanation for the delay of the long-expected Axis drive against the Red army was seen in Stimson's report that Germany has shifted ten or twelve additional divisions into France, and has sent several divisions to Italy.

This latter move seemed to dispose of speculation that Germany intended to leave Italy alone to face an Allied drive from North Africa. Instead, the senior partner of the Axis apparently intends to bolster Italian defenses heavily in an effort to prevent Allied capture of Sicily and Sardinia, or a landing on the Italian mainland.

Divisions Not Identified
Whether the divisions moved into Western and Southern Europe came from the Russian front was problematical, Stimson said, and they may well have been drawn from reserves in Germany.

However, depletion of these reserves would mean just that many fewer troops available for replacements on the Russian front.

Stimson's statements supported a growing belief in some quarters that the German offensive against Russia has now been abandoned.
Some observers see in this a tacit admission by the German high command that an Axis victory is no longer a possibility, that German strength must be saved to fight off Allied attacks, and that the best the Axis can hope for now is to drag out a defensive war so long that the Allies will become wearied and agree to a negotiated peace rather than unconditional surrender.

Broadcasts Changed
In line with this, they point to a change of tone noticed in recent

Pennsylvania Miners Vote for "Holiday"

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 24 (AP)—The revolt against the back-to-work recommendation of the United Mine Workers' Policy committee spread in the Pennsylvania anthracite field tonight, as a sizeable group who reported for work today declared a holiday starting tomorrow.

In West Virginia, the leading bituminous state, 12,000 failed to observe the four months' truce called by the UMW policy committee and absenteeism in mines operating averaged about twenty-five per cent.

Insists Ruling In Controversy Is Final Word

Tells Ickes There Is No Longer Anything To Decide

Board Also Said To Plan To Challenge Position of Lewis

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Far from accepting a resumption of coal production as final, the War Labor Board resolved today to insist on full compliance by the United Mine Workers with its order in the miners' wage dispute.

The board also authorized a brief statement, pointed at Secretary Ickes, that the labor dispute has been finally determined and only enforcement of the decision remains to be accomplished.

Ickes, as custodian of the mines, summoned twenty-nine mine owners for a conference tomorrow and in his telegram he referred to "the controversy between the mine workers and the operators which is under the jurisdiction of the War Labor Board" and expressed hope "that the controversy will be speedily settled."

When this was called to its attention, the board authorized its information director to say:

Find Decision Made
"The War Labor Board has made a final determination of the labor dispute. There is no controversy between the United Mine Workers and the Operators."

Authoritative WLB sources interpreted this as meaning that the board considers the case is strictly one of compliance with its decision by John L. Lewis's Union.

An informed source, who declined to be quoted by name, said the members agreed today that Lewis's reservation that the government retain control of the mines, and his refusal to sign the contract handed down by the board, should not be allowed to go unchallenged.

Position of Board
The board ordered last week that the United Mine Workers sign a contract with the private operators at substantially the old terms plus concessions amounting to about twenty cents a day, and agree not to strike for the duration. The UMW policy committee called this an "infamous yellow dog contract."

Chairman William H. Davis told President Roosevelt in a letter Tuesday that the board was unanimous in advising him that "all the powers of government necessary" should be used to enforce the WLB order. Informed sources significantly pointed to that phrase today when asked the board's position.

May Appeal to Byrnes
The WLB is a presidential agency and has no enforcement machinery of its own. In pressing further for executive action to obtain full compliance, the board may make its approach to the White House through War Mobilization Director

Blast Furnaces Forced To Close

PITTSBURGH, June 24 (AP)—The United States Steel Corporation announced today five blast furnaces will be forced to close down tomorrow due to the shortage of coking coal.

Five others of the corporation's thirty-seven district furnaces were closed earlier this week. The ten furnaces turn out about 8,000 tons of pig iron a day.

40 Per Cent of Miners Estimated To Have Refused To Resume Work

PITTSBURGH, June 24 (AP)—The
back-to-work movement of the United Mine Workers, although expanding today to spur partial resumption of operations in the nation's coal fields, failed to bring thousands back to the pits and struck a snag especially in Pennsylvania, where many locals voted to remain on strike.

An estimated forty per cent of the half-million United Mine Workers remained idle in protest against the long deadlock in their contract dispute, particularly the portal-to-portal pay issue.

About 100,000 of the 200,000 bituminous and anthracite coal diggers in Pennsylvania continued their walkout.

House Unit Votes To Slash Powers Held by O.P.A.

Goes against Roosevelt in Move To Create Food "Czar"

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY
WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Disregarding President Roosevelt's wishes, the House Agriculture committee today approved a measure to create an all-powerful wartime food "czar."

Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) said: "The food situation is getting critical, and the legislation is designed to deal with the emergency."

The bill, if made law, would take all food rationing and price powers from the Office of Price Administration (O.P.A.), headed by Prentiss Brown, and place them with the War Food Administrator, Chester C. Davis, who now supervises food production and distribution.

Opposed by Roosevelt
Mr. Roosevelt last week turned down suggestions by two bi-partisan Congressional committees that such action be taken by executive order.

The measure approved by the Agriculture committee would give Davis final authority on foods—not subject to the approval of the president. However, Mr. Roosevelt would have power to replace him in case of hopeless disagreement.

Written by Committee Chairman Fulmer, the bill embodies a proposal previously made by the Republican Congressional Food Study committee. It was reported 18 to 8, with all twelve committee Republicans and six Democrats voting for it. The sweeping measure provides:

Provides Great Powers
"The War Food Administrator is authorized and directed, notwithstanding any other provision of law (including title I of the first war powers act, 1941), exclusively to exercise on behalf of the United States, either directly or through such other officers or agencies as he may designate, all powers, functions, and duties conferred or imposed upon any officer or agency of the United States by any law, order, regulation, or directive with respect to the nation's food program in the United States and territories, including the production, processing, distribution, rationing, procurement, requisitioning, allocation of, priorities, storage, exportation and importation of, provisions of labor and facilities for, and for the establishment, maintenance and adjustment of prices for, food and food facilities."

Fulmer expressed hope it could pass before Congress takes a recess two or three weeks hence.

County Wheat Farmers Are Eligible for AAA Commodity Credit Loans

According to an announcement from the County Agricultural Adjustment Agency office, county farmers, who grow wheat this year under the AAA war-food-production and soil-conservation program and store it for the nation's granary, will be eligible for commodity credit corporation loans.

The loans will be nine cents per bushel above those of 1942. Maryland wheat of grade No. 2 will have a loan value ranging from $1.39 to $1.43 per bushel, depending on the county in which it is grown.

Loans will be made through the county office of the AAA located on Washington street. Further information may be obtained there also.

Hope Held Out

Encinitas, Calif., pilot on the fortress "Patsy Ann," which was flying directly behind Forrest, said the general's bomber emerged from the initial enemy attacks at the German coast with one engine "smoking like hell."

Cosens said six Germans concentrated on the lead bomber in ferocious, head-on stabs, and said further:

"But he flew on and led us over the bomb run. As we turned off the target the general's ship again was attacked. I saw it slow down, drop out of formation. We pulled up and took over the leader's position."

Flight Officer James W. Reed of Starkville, Miss., co-pilot, and Lieut. Earl T. De Wolfe of Barstow, Calif., bombardier on Cosens's Fortress said they saw three fighters swoop over Forrest's bomber and savagely strafe it with cannon and machine guns. One cannon shell blasted a three foot hole in its tail section, they said.

West Point Graduate
General Forrest, left Fort George Wright, then second air force headquarters, a month ago for an unannounced assignment. He was graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point in 1928.

Captain Harry M. Conley, San Francisco, pilot of the Fortress "Blondie" which later crash-landed on the English coast, probably had the last view of Forrest's bomber, which he estimated then went down to about 6,000 feet.

"I saw it spiral down and then it seemed to level off and turn northeast," Conley said. "It still seemed to be under control."

Forrest, who flew to England to assume command of a bomber wing, was reputed to be one of the army's best pilots as well as a gunnery expert. Personally briefing the gunners before the pre-dawn take-off, his parting words were "good luck men, I'll be flying in the lead ship."

Shuttle Raids Show Axis What Allies Can Do

Bombing Flights from Britain to Africa and Return Seen as Preview

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer
The RAF's Britain-North Africa shuttle raids add a spectacular chapter to the brilliant history being written this summer by the Allied air forces. However, it is interesting chiefly as a preview of things to come rather than as an example of tactics that can be put immediately into widespread use.

The flight of several squadrons of four-engined Lancasters from Britain to Africa and return, blasting Friedrichshaven on the out trip and La Spezia going home, does perhaps give a glimpse of what may be expected in the final phase of the war, when the outlying Axis bastions have been reduced and the fortress of Europe has been whittled down to more manageable size. Then the enemy's territory is likely to be criss-crossed from all points of the compass on day and night shuttle runs blasting away at the last hard core of resistance, assuming that the core outlasts the outer shell. For the moment, however, this fine exploit serves rather as a reminder of the breadth of the enemy's conquests and of the great areas that have to be carved away before the Allies can get at the vital spots.

This applies alike in Europe and the Orient.

Only Short Route
The fact is that this Britain-North Africa route is about the only one short enough today for an effective shuttle run. It gives access only to limited areas of enemy territory, almost all of which already have been attacked successfully. La Spezia, the big naval base in Northwestern Italy which the Lancasters bombed on their homeward journey, previously had been blasted on roundtrip raids from both Britain and Africa. However, for reaching Northwestern Italy, which contains the industrial centers of Milan and Turin and the ports of Genoa and Leghorn, in addition to La Spezia; for Southwestern Germany, and perhaps also for the hitherto unbombed northeast of Italy, including the great port of Trieste, these Britain-Africa flights may prove the most effective means. The same applies to most of France, which is crossed by the most direct routes.

New Problem for Axis
The main advantage of shuttle attacks is that under favorable circumstances they might compel the enemy to double his defenses to obtain the present degree of protection. A considerable proportion of an attacking air force's casualties are suffered on the way home. If the planes had the option of going straight on obviously the enemy would have to alert his fighters and anti-aircraft installations in both directions.

On a Britain-to-Russia route, a squadron from Britain which attacked Berlin would have to fly almost twice as far beyond Berlin to reach the nearest Russian bases as the homeward flight would require.

The first and still most thrilling attack of the shuttle type was the Doolittle raid on Tokyo. The fliers took off from one edge of enemy territory and found safety beyond the opposite limit. But that was a rare fact that has not yet been repeated, illustrating the vast handicaps of distance we have to overcome in the Pacific area. However, the day is approaching when this or something like it will be done again and again.

"Had she been a member of the House for the past twelve years during the critical period through which we have been passing and had served on the Foreign Affairs committee, and seen these various transactions unfold themselves, she would not have made some of the statements which she made here today."

Johnson said Mrs. Luce "was rather unfair and manifested a spirit of extreme partisanship when she leveled her criticism at the president" and secretary of state.

Mrs. Luce said Mr. Roosevelt, lacking any foreign policy, had adopted the British war policy as that of this nation.

Scores Isolationists
She also referred bitterly to "the dunderheads" on either side of the House who had followed an "isolationist" policy and said this nation's isolationism had "fanned the flames of war and plunged the world into catastrophe" twice in the past forty years.

Mrs. Luce's speech was in support of the resolution of Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark.), which pledges the Congress to support international machinery to maintain peace after this conflict.

She asserted that in the past forty years, "the average American has come to feel, for some strange reason, that our thinking about Europe and Asia could stop at the water's edge."

"And he has been doomed to ugly surprises," she added. "He is doomed to uglier and more tragic ones if he has failed to learn the lesson of two world wars, namely that our lack of a foreign policy has not only been an irritant, a worry and a headache to our natural allies, forcing them into appeasements and uncertainties, but also has been a very real aid to our enemies."

Salamaua Bombed From Low Level

Allies Set Big Fires in Raid on New Guinea Port

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, June 25 (AP)—Allied Mitchell bombers set big fires yesterday at Salamaua, New Guinea, in a low level attack, the high command announced.

Allied fighters destroyed two Japanese bombers while over the Tanimbar islands, 300 miles north of Darwin.

In the reawakened ground fighting sector at Mubo, twelve miles below Salamaua, Allied attack planes bombed and strafed the Japanese position on Woody Island and along adjacent tracks in support of the ground troops but "the ground situation was quiet," the noon communique said.

"In his recent attacks, the enemy sustained over 200 known casualties," it added.

"Our losses were very light in proportion."

Over Tanimbar, Allied long range fighters heavily strafed the air-drome on Selaru, destroying two enemy reconnaissance bombers which were on the ground.

At Salamaua, the air-drome buildings and installations as well as adjacent villages occupied by the Japanese were the targets.

The communique said the raiders started large fires in the supply and fuel dumps.

Baltimore Bookie Draws Heavy Fine

Robert Bailey Must Pay $4,000 and Costs, Judge O'Dunne Says

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Judge Eugene O'Dunne imposed today a fine of $4,000 and costs of about $180 on a pool room operator who pleaded guilty to ten charges of accepting horse race bets.

The pool room operator who received what court attaches said was one of the stiffest fines ever imposed for a bookmaking conviction in the city was Robert Bailey. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Bailey, was also under indictment. She pleaded nolo contendere, or no defense, and received a suspended sentence.

Police Sgt. Joseph Byrne, who led the raid on the Bailey pool room, testified he seized 2,354 race bet slips representing wagers of $6,374 on dates between May 30 and June 1.

On cross examination, Byrne testified that winnings of the operation over a ten-day period amounted to about $1,800.

Defense attorneys told the court Bailey had returned to work in a defense plant since the raid.

Allegany County Group Will Attend Maryland State Bar Meeting

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, Attorney General William C. Walsh, Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., Westernport; Walter C. Capper and William A. Gunter, accompanied by their wives, will leave this morning for Baltimore to attend the forty-eighth annual meeting of the Maryland State Bar Association.

The bar convention this year is being held at the Belvedere hotel, because of war time travel restrictions. Instead of Atlantic City, N. J., where the convention has been held for years.

Instead of the usual three-day convention, the meeting this year has been cut to one and a half days, opening at 2:30 p. m. today. A reception and dance for the members and their guests will be held this evening.

United States Judge William C. Coleman will act as toastmaster at the annual banquet tomorrow evening. Speakers will include Judge Eli Frank, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, the association's new president, and Rep. Hattin W. Summers, of Texas, chairman of the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

Compulsory Health And Hospital Insurance Predicted by Dr. Swain

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Enactment of some form of compulsory health and hospital insurance for the nation within the next five years was predicted today by Dr. Robert L. Swain, editor of "Drug Topics."

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association, Dr. Swain urged the delegates to co-operate with medical hospital and nursing organizations in preparation for "an expanding public health scheme."

The former editor of "The Maryland Pharmacist" forecast a "sharp degree" of regimentation in public health.

"The American Medical Association has thrown in the towel to socialized medicine as the only means of meeting post war medical needs. Unless we pharmacists make an effort to study trends shaping up, it is possible we will find ourselves isolated," Dr. Swain declared.

Girl Orchestra Idea Turns Out To Be a Winner

No Lack of Manpower in Phil Spitalny's Organization

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—Phil Spitalny's idea for an all-girl orchestra almost won him a trip to a psychiatrist eight years ago.

Today, on the anniversary of the band's first appearance, he is untouched by personnel-jitters, an occupational disease afflicting most of the maestros of the ordinary bands. Spitalny has a virtually draft-proof aggregation of excellent musicians.

"I certainly didn't plan it that way," the leader commented. "I thought an orchestra of women would be a good thing. The war came along and turned a good idea into a brilliant one."

"When I told my family I had an idea for an all-girl orchestra, my brother told me my mother she should take me to a psychiatrist. That was because I was doing very nicely leading the usual type of an orchestra."

On June 24, 1935, Spitalny unveiled his orchestra on the stage of the Capitol theater, New York, with a medley of Victor Herbert songs. An orchestra of thirty-five members opened an anniversary engagement on the same stage today—with eight of the "founders" at their stands—and played another medley, this time one of popular war songs.

Spitalny has become, by necessity, something of a Solomon in his dealings with women.

"Only four of the girls have left the orchestra to marry," Spitalny said. "Some of them married, of course, but stayed with the orchestra."

"After all, a girl who makes good money doesn't want to marry—at least they don't seem to. And besides, she'd have a hard time finding some man making as much as she was."

His opinions were echoed by one of the band members; Evelyn, violin soloist, concert mistress and one of the original orchestra members. She is single.

"We don't seem to get married much," Evelyn remarked in an off-hand manner. "Why should we? I can't see why we should want to support some guy on the money we make."

Buffalo, N. Y. Man Dies Of Injuries Suffered At B. & O. Round House

Jack Evans, 53, of 190 Paekam street, Buffalo, N. Y., died last evening at 11:15 o'clock in Memorial hospital from injuries suffered yesterday morning while employed with a gang engaged in tearing down the old Baltimore and Ohio railroad round house on Virginia avenue.

Evans, an employee of the Harris Wrecking Company, suffered back injuries, according to information furnished by hospital attaches. No other details of the accident were available.

The body was taken to the Knight Funeral Home.

Senate Committee Votes against NYA

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee adopted today a House-approved proposal to abolish the depression-born National Youth Administration (NYA).

The action reversed a subcommittee, which favored a $46,000,000 appropriation to finance NYA's youth training and student-aid program for the fiscal year starting July 1.

State Policeman C. R. Dawson said at Logan, W. Va., that a group of men "pulled the crew off" the tippie of an Island Creek Coal Company mine, forcing it to suspend operations.

"The trouble was over when we got there, and no one was hurt," he said.

President John P. Busarello of UMW district 5 at Pittsburgh expressed hope that more of the 36,000 miners in his district would return to work tomorrow.

Two Ambassadors Reported Guests At 'Call House'

Latin Americans Declared Involved in Mann Act Case

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—A comely Spanish woman accused of operating a call house which provided girls for diplomats told a federal district court jury today two Latin American ambassadors and a member of the Chinese embassy staff were among the men who called at her apartment.

The defendant, dark-haired Mrs. Carmen Beach Martin, described the callers, merely as social acquaintances. She has denied the government's charge that she violated the Mann act by sending a young woman in taxicabs to keep dates with men in fashionable hotels.

The identity of the diplomats involved was kept carefully secret. Bernard Margolis, assistant United States attorney, cautioned the defendant against mentioning names.

Mrs. Martin, a professional rumba dancer and seamstress, appeared in court clad in a long white evening gown, plus a "giant plaid" sport jacket. The trailing gown was caught up with pins. There was no explanation of this attire.

The two ambassadors called one night at her apartment in the company of the Chinese diplomat, she said. She also said she met an ambassador in the cocktail lounges of Washington hotels, when she was in the company of a young woman named Dorothy Smiley.

Dates for Dorothy
The latter previously told the jury that Mrs. Martin had employed her as a seamstress, but then suggested that she "get in on the big money" and had made dates for her. Mrs. Martin denied she ever gave the girl taxi fare to keep dates. The Mann act provides severe penalties for transporting women for immoral purposes.

Mrs. Martin said she had befriended the girl, who represented herself as a violinist out of a job, by renting her a room for $4 a week on credit.

The defendant at one time flared back at the government attorney and told him she was not going to name any of the married men among her acquaintances. She said that she might have sent the Smiley girl to meet some of her friends for cocktails in hotels when she was unable to go but she could not remember. Again, she said, if the Smiley girl received any money from the men it was not in her presence and without her knowledge.

She herself, she said, received many presents from men. Her own attorney, Harry Whelan, brought out that she meant "the 100 or more" presents she had received at the time of her wedding to a naval petty officer in December.

At the conclusion of her testimony, the defense rested.

With arguments completed today, it was expected the case would go to the jury tomorrow morning.

The bombing of La Spezia in a "doubleheader" raid upon Germany and Italy added a dramatic note to the aerial offensive by Britain's heavyweights.

Their return-trip pummeling of the Italian naval base appeared of the greatest significance in the development of aerial war. The bombers flew a round trip of about 2,500 miles, and lost not a single ship.

A retaliatory thrust by fifteen German planes set fires roaring in Hull, on the northeast coast of England, Wednesday night, and caused numerous casualties and heavy damage, the air and home security ministries announced.

The Nazi raiders sowed thousands of incendiary bombs over the port in a raid lasting more than an hour.

At Least Nine Enemy Submarines Reported Sunk Off Pacific Coast

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (AP)—The Los Angeles Times says at least nine Japanese submarines, possibly others, have been sunk off California and Oregon by navy and coast guard surface and air forces since Pearl Harbor.

The Times says the tabulation was entirely unconfirmed by the navy but based upon substantial data.

Most of the Jap subs were sunk in the opening weeks of the war, says the newspaper, after six American freighters had been attacked offshore, and the effect was to drive the Nipponese subs from American waters.

The Times continues:

"Emblematic that she sank a sub is a gold star on the funnel of the Los Angeles coast guard patrol boat Hermes, presumably for an exploit off California. She is said to be entitled to another for dropping depth charges successfully a month later within sight of California shores."

"Her sister ship, the Perseus, is reported to have sent another underwater enemy to the bottom a month after the war started. Again a California commercial airline pilot is supposed to have sighted an enemy submarine on the surface, radioed the alarm, and navy planes from San Diego sneaked up and dispatched it. Two more are believed to have been destroyed off California, one by plane and one jointly by plane and surface patrol."

"Less definite is the report that a pig boat was depth-bombed to the bottom off a California harbor. The rest are listed as having been disposed of off Northern California and Oregon by planes and surface craft, including one three days after war started. The above does not include sinkings by army planes, said to have been equally effective."

Many Squadrons Attack
Norwegian and Canadian squadrons escorted the Bostons on the first attack upon St. Omer. The Typhoons struck a short time later, concentrating on Fort Rouge airfield. Typhoon fighters of a New Zealand squadron escorted the Typhoon bombers to Abbeville. Ventura attacked Maupertus.

Some raiders did not even sight a single enemy plane.

Changes in locale of the night and day attack, gave at least a brief respite to the German Ruhr from which, it was reliably reported, more than 1,000,000 persons had already been moved to "safer" areas northeast, east, and west, including thousands of workers from shattered factories.

Insists Ruling

James F. Byrne in the next day or two.

While members of the board concede it is a physical problem to require persons to place their name on a contract, most of them are known to believe that sanctions should be used against a defiant union as they are used against a defiant employee. The sanctions might take various forms, such as stopping the dues checkoff or freezing the union's treasury.

It is the board's position that it decided all issues of the labor dispute, including the portal to portal pay demand, although not precluding the union's right to sue under the Fair Labor Standards Act if it felt it had a case at law.

This was taken to mean in authoritative quarters that there are no longer accruing against the operators any liabilities they might have to pay retroactively, with the possible exception of portal to portal pay. If the courts should decide a lawsuit for the miners, it is conceivable that the liability would be retroactive for several years under the wage and hour law.

Germans Report Red Army Smash Into Nazi Lines

Penetration South of Velikie Luki Later Sealed Off, They Assert

LONDON, Friday, June 25 (AP)—German dispatchers reported today that the Red army had smashed into Axis lines south of Velikie Luki, only eighty miles from the Latvian border, but said a German counterattack had sealed off the breach in this sector which had been comparatively quiet for months.

The regular midnight Moscow bulletin did not specifically name the Velikie Luki sector, but said Soviet scouts and artillery had destroyed twelve dugouts and eight machineguns on the western front. Velikie Luki is 275 miles west of the Soviet capital.

A special Moscow broadcast announced that the Germans had nineteen planes in attempted daylight attacks Wednesday on towns near Leningrad. Four Russian planes were lost in blocking the raiders, which failed even to reach the towns, the announcement said.

The German-controlled Paris radio reported the fighting at Velikie Luki in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, but did not indicate whether the engagement was a large-scale one.

Kill 180 Germans
Soviet scouts also killed 180 Germans and destroyed three large blockhouses and several machinegun points in another stab into German positions west of Axis-held Belgorod on the Southern front, said the Moscow bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Fifty Finns were reported killed above Leningrad in a minor clash, and Soviet artillery scored hits on German positions near Lischansk southeast of Kharkov.

In the air the Russians said the airmen and gunners downed five German aircraft during the day.

German broadcasts, both those for home consumption and those beamed overseas. The home broadcasts no longer threaten, or boast of Axis invincibility, but instead warn the German population of possible disaster.

One recent broadcast, taking the British and Americans severely to task for killing civilians in their bombing raids on Germany, contained an implied official admission to the German people that the Allies now exercise air supremacy over Western Europe. Another beamed at America, spoke of post-war opportunities for the United States in Europe as the leader in reconstruction efforts, and containing the startling statement—considering it came from a German source—that at the end of the war the United States would be the most powerful nation in the world.

Doctor, Discussing Rationing Effect On Diet, Sees No Signs of Malnutrition

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

As I watch the gyrations of the rationing boards, I am reminded of a speech which was made by a great Conservative whom I knew in Edinburgh many years ago somewhat to the following effect.

"In the city of Edinburgh, which comprises nearly a million souls, every morning there is left on every doorstep one bottle or two bottles of milk. The household may need three bottles of milk, and if that is the case, three bottles of milk are left on the doorstep.

"This intricate arrangement has been made possible by the development of capitalism. I doubt whether or not an entirely Socialistic government could deliver exactly the precise number of bottles of milk on the proper doorsteps as required by the citizens of Edinburgh every morning, Saturday and Sunday included, every day in the year."

The quotation indicates to my conservative mind that when the emergency is all over it is most unlikely that the distribution of food will be left in the hands of the bureaucrats. They have not shown any conspicuous knack in conducting an over-all paternal management of the distribution of food, nor adjusting food prices to the pocketbook level of the average American family.

Undoubtedly part of the confusion is due to the fact that Americans are unaccustomed to working on a point ration system. And that is a good augury for the future. But the way in which one commodity is advertised as very scarce one week and then the next week is so plentiful that its ration point value must be reduced in order to use up the surplus must drive a Socialistic-minded Harvard bureaucrat nuts. Again I am encouraged because it shows that the law of supply and demand still works no matter how much they attempt to caulk up the holes in the dam, and I like to live in a world of law and order.

Another less economical spectacle, and one which I think involves a mistake, is the result of putting a time limit on when a certain ration stamp can be used. The American housewife who is naturally a thrifty soul finds herself Saturday with a whole page of stamps which will be useless Monday. So she proceeds to market, buys a number of things she does not immediately need and with the help of others like her, cleans out all the grocery stores and markets, so that even the cockroaches are feeling a depression.

No Malnutrition
On the whole from the standpoint of a nutritionist, in spite of the fluctuating announcements, I cannot see that anyone is really suffering from malnutrition, and in many cases there is evidence that changes of dietary habits are beneficial.

I do not believe from the study of such authoritative surveys as I have been able to obtain that the diversion of food to civilian populations of other lands threatens to impose any deficiencies on the American people. The severest criticism of the Surplus Commodities Corporation which I have read concludes that at one time the corporation had stored enough food to supply a full month's ration of forty-eight points for half a million people. And that is not serious, because the stores were not perishable and will be used somewhere, sometime.

Questions and Answers

G. D. H.: I am in my late thirties and have been classified as a "potential diabetic." What are my chances of having a normal baby?

Answer: Many women, even those who have more or less serious cases of diabetes, have been able to have normal babies. If by proper treatment the disease is brought under control, there is no reason why you should not have a normal baby.

Many Subsidies Are Already in Effect

REPRESENTATIVE CLIFFORD R. HOPE, of Kansas, has reminded the House of Representatives that subsidies have already been extensively employed by the Roosevelt administration. In doing so he expressed doubt that the average well-informed person in this country has any idea as to the extent to which this subsidy plan has gone. The most of them are on food or on products entering into the production of food, directly or indirectly, but included also are some of the metals and fuels.

The list supplied by Representative Hope is, indeed, astounding. It includes copper, lead and zinc, petroleum, bituminous coal, coffee, sugar, tea, cocoa, corn, wheat, rice, peanuts, rye, barley, grain sorghums, grain alcohol, beans, peas, hogs, dairy cattle, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, vegetables for canning, cabbage, soybeans, flaxseed, castor beans, olives, oil refining subsidies, fats and oils, shell eggs, whole dried eggs, dairy products, milk, truck crops for fresh market, chickens and turkeys, pecans, dried fruits, sugar beets, hay and pasture seeds, hemp fiber and seeds, strawberries, butter, meat, henequen and sisal, copper scrap, Chilean nitrate, Puerto Rican food, jute and bleached sulfite wood pulp.

Representative Hope explained in detail how each of these subsidies has been arranged. Now, it may be wondered by many citizens, as they express amazement over the great extent to which the subsidy payment plan has already gone, why it is that, if a subsidy will hold back prices and curb inflation, they are having to pay such higher prices for many of the items listed in Representative Hope's enumeration. Here seems to be definite proof that the subsidy idea will not work, either toward reducing or holding prices, or stopping inflation. The listing is another reminder, too, as to why it is that our government expenses are so terrific.

Regimenting Our Sports

REPRESENTATIVE FRANK L. SUNDSTROM, of New Jersey, has experienced a rather violent reaction to a report that President Roosevelt has decided on appointing a committee to attempt a solution of the war-born problems confronting organized sports. Expressing himself thereon for the benefit of his colleagues, he made three points.

Point No. 1 was that "if the government is suddenly aware of the health and morale of our people, why does it not take immediate affirmative action with the food situation?" In Representative Sundstrom's opinion nutrition surely "is a factor of the first order in maintaining health and developing morale," and "the food supply is the responsibility of the United States government, whereas," as he has stated before, "sports should be left in the hands of sportsmen and under local control."

Point No. 2 was that "even though members of the contemplated committee may be of the highest caliber and serve without pay, there is bound to be an expense for the taxpayers, for surely this committee, in order to function, will have administrative, traveling and organizational expense."

Point No. 3 was that the representative stands for freedom of American sports. "Who knows," he asked, "but that federal control will destroy this freedom?" and advised that we should "direct the efforts toward the proper distribution of food, the basis of health, and do not create an agency for the regimentation of youth. I fear," he added pertinently, "that under government control records will be made by bureaucrats and not by athletes."

Three good points, indeed. The remarks of Representative Sundstrom are another reminder of the insidious, continuing program under way in Washington to socialize and regiment the American people through the cloak of solving post-war problems.

The Battle For Sicily

IN THE MOVEMENT of Allied convoys through the Western Mediterranean the Axis finds confirmation for its fears that the aerial scourging of Sicily is to be followed quickly by infantry invasion. Some military observers hold that the pattern of Pantelleria, conquest by air attack alone, is not logically applicable to the much larger island of Sicily, which is separated from the Italian mainland only by a narrow strip of water. Infantry, they predict, must move in under an air canopy.

But as the attack unfolds, air attack is turning the tide of battle. Allied planes are tearing up Axis air fields, knocking enemy planes out of the air, grinding coastal installations to bits and reducing the resistance of Sicilian garrisons to a minimum. When the Allies land, opposition directed against them will come from enemy infantry and artillery. The Axis will have little or no air support and the Italian fleet continues to be immobilized by the overwhelming power of Allied sea and air forces.

How long the Battle for Sicily lasts will depend upon the nature of Axis strategy. If the enemy has decided upon delaying tactics, he will leave a sizeable force in Sicily, which will attempt to entrench itself in the rough interior. This would permit the Allies to occupy the coastal areas, to be followed by air assaults to reduce the enemy's interior entrenchments.

There is no evidence that the Axis will make the effort to hang on in Sicily that it did in Tunisia. Except for the circumstance that the Allies must cross the Mediterranean to attack Sicily, that Axis outpost might have been taken before this.

The Maryland Score In Car Registrations

MARYLAND is riding around on rubber wheels more than most states of the union, according to a survey just completed by the National Automobile Dealers' Association covering thirty states and the District of Columbia.

Registrations of passenger cars, as of May 1, showed a falling off of approximately 2,500,000 below those of May 1, 1942, because of war-time restrictions, according to the study.

The decline in the registration of passenger cars was at the rate of 10.4 per cent, and of trucks 3.3 per cent. But the decline in Maryland in passenger cars is shown to have been only 6.4 per cent while the decline in truck registrations was practically negligible, being placed at only 0.1 per cent, the smallest decline of any of the states, while in eight states there were actual increases.

The survey is of value principally on the score of revenue yields from this source.

Yes, It is a Funny World

WHAT'S WRONG with Washington and the war?

Maybe an OPA official summed it all up in one sentence when he said recently that "business must hold its nose and take its medicine."

There it is in a nutshell. The New Dealers in the midst of a bitter war still think the business of government is the fight on business. The author of this revealing statement hasn't found out that it isn't big business that is being hurt by OPA. It is the housewife; the fixed salary, white-collar worker; the farmer; the retailer in competition with OPA's "black market" bootleggers; the little business man who is being bled white.

And the young legalists go on writing directives and hurling challenges at industry while industry goes on turning out the tanks and airplanes that give the New Dealers all they can point to with pride.

Funny world!

The consensus of opinion in Washington seems to be that no additional income tax levies will be voted until next year, and if they are voted in a presidential election year it will be a revolutionary step.

Another old simile now gone into the discard is that one about being "dropped like a hot potato." These days, when a guy gets hold of a spud he just won't let go!

Some natives of South America, we read, think World War I is still going on. Could be right—maybe this thing is being fought out, innit by innit.

Who's an Ant?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The hardworking ant has been exposed and I'm glad it's happened. All my life I've been learning about the wonders of the ant world—about his marvelous organization—about his tireless patient endeavor. And never, for one moment, have I believed a word of it. I had a hunch that no story as perfect as that could possibly be true. And I felt even when I was a kid that no creature as industrious as an ant could be really intelligent.

Well, I was right. A patient professor who spent his summers on the slopes of Mt. Wilson did what any small boy might have done. He laid on his stomach for days at a time and measured the speed of the ants, and learned that their pace is automatic and strictly regulated by the TEMPERATURE. The hotter the day the faster they go.

When the thermometer shows a temperature of 50 degrees the ants' speed is 52 feet an hour; when the mercury rises to 100 degrees the speed of the ants rises to 780 feet an hour. The hotter the faster, the colder the slower—day in and day out—as long as they live—that's how it is with ants.

Finally the learned man knew his ants so well that he could look at his thermometer and tell you without going near the ants just how fast they were moving. He'd say: "Today their speed is 480 feet an hour," and sure enough if you went to the ant-hill and checked on the speed, you learned that he was almost precisely correct.

I've lost some respect for the ant since I learned that he responds so closely to heat and to cold—but I hope the patient professor sticks to ants and doesn't turn his attention on human beings.

He might learn too much about US. He might find that whenever we are sick we are peevish—whenever we are flattered we are good-humored—whenever we are criticized we get red in the face—whenever we have eaten well we think it's a "good old world"—whenever we pass a mirror we look into it—whenever a friend has a lucky break we wonder why THAT didn't happen to us.

He might discover that in too many ways we are as automatic as any little ant and not the Masters of Our Fate or the Captains of Our Soul at all, but tiny little Servants of the Thermometer, too. And we wouldn't like that!

Temperate Course Is Urged as Cure For Race Rioting

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 24—The race riots over the country (Beaumont, Los Angeles, Detroit, Mobile) are being watched from Washington with tightly drawn, silent lips, but with much inner perturbation and comment.

It has become customary for officials to lecture the hoodlums on both sides about law and order, and the necessity for being calm in strained emotional periods of war-time, but this does not seem to be doing much good. It does not even reach in the direction of the causes or cure of the tragic, expanding condition.

The ultra radical New York newspaper, P.M., and the CIO publications, which instigated or sensationalized a movement, at the start of the war, to get the negroes full social and economic equality, swiftly, during the domestic upset contingent with the war effort, have taken the line since the riots that they are inspired by Fascists.

One such edition of P.M. carried ten pages of exciting (if not inciting) pictures depicting the brutal, savage beatings of negroes, and only one picture of an injured white man. Their whole treatment of this humiliating situation for both whites and negroes, holds the white hoodlums solely responsible.

One of their writers suggests that the cause of the trouble can be traced solely to rumors, another says an incidental altercation of a white and negro inspired outbreak, etc.

Riots do not grow out of a rumor or many rumors, or even isolated incidents, but out of a general situation. First you must have an explosive general condition in which sparks may ignite.

The riots do directly serve the cause of the enemies of this country, but alert government agencies have come forward with no proof of a direct Axis agent contact either with rumors or riots. No one seems to know the true cause of most of them. In one place, it is one thing; in another, another.

But in all cases it is a clash over the rights of negroes—and, of course, the very same radical American sources who make these charges are the ones who are championing a reform of these rights to the fullest in the midst of war.

Now no one is going to accomplish much good trying to talk common sense and truth in the midst of a swirling situation like this. Yet it will only make matters worse to blind the country to the truth of the condition.

Other Minorities, Too

Any minority group of a white color in this country, attempting aggressive action to elbow its way to complete economic and social justice in the midst of war, would run into the same thing which the radical negro movement has encountered.

For instance, the white collar workers have suffered great economic setbacks from the war. Their taxes and prices have risen tremendously out of all comparison with their increase in wages.

But if they attempted to get their rights during war by a march on Washington, or by Mahatma Ghandi's sit-down tactics, or by showing people off sidewalks or organizing belligerent meetings to demand that the president act in such a way—in short, if they conducted themselves in a physically aggressive manner, they would run into the same physical opposition.

Any minority group of any color, in any country in the world during war, would encounter the same spirit. Consider what would happen, for instance, to a pacifist group, radical members of which made revolutionary speeches for their rights.

It must be apparent, therefore, that the solution of these racial difficulties is not going to be found if the counsel of the radicals on both sides and their hoodlums is followed. A temperate course is demanded not only by one side but by both.

Such a course can be directed only by active temperate leadership of negroes by negroes and of whites by whites. Wiser counsels must be made to prevail on both sides—not just one.

Great Domain To Be Opened

By Representative Evan Howell, of Illinois, as Reported in the Congressional Record

With each day in the development of our wartime aviation it becomes clearer that civil aviation will grow to be one of our largest and most important industries after the war. Whatever its size, however its significance in terms of both national defense and commercial prosperity will be far in excess of the numbers of people employed or the capital invested in the industry.

Beyond any question, civil aviation will open a new domain having an effect upon our national habits and way of life just as important as were the effects flowing from the opening of the West in the days of the pioneers.

Whether the full development of the industry takes ten or twenty or a hundred years, the domain which it will open is, in physical terms alone, far greater than the area laid open to our forefathers by Lewis and Clark or any other of the great explorers. For that domain literally is as broad as the continent itself and reaches higher into the heavens than the eyes of man can see even in a cloudless sky. The domain is nothing less than the entire air space, three dimensional in measure, limitless in extent.

For all that we now know there may one day be great floating hotels between which commerce can be conducted without ever setting foot on earth. Such a possibility is no more fantastic today than the possibility of floating airdromes in the ocean may have seemed a decade ago. Within the last few weeks we have seen seriously proposed a trans-Atlantic air line based upon great floating seadromes at convenient points in mid-Atlantic. We may not, in our lifetime, see air terminals in the air space, but the possibilities of aviation's development are so limitless that we need not close our eyes even to figments of the imagination.

WON'T SOMEBODY PLEASE SHOW THEM THE WAITING ROOM?

Congress Will Not Raise Draft Age as Proposed by Roosevelt, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 24—President Roosevelt has just made another one of those strange mistakes in assessing public psychology which are rare in his career—the previous blunder of equal magnitude being his misjudgment of the spirit of the American people in opposing his effort to enlarge the Supreme Court so as to change its decisions.

Today with 10,000,000 men in the armed services, the commander-in-chief brushes aside the stab in the back which has been given to the nation's fuel production and intimates that there will be no legislation to prohibit strikes when the government seizes a property.

The president's statement, reiterating the familiar excuse that "only a very small fraction of one per cent of production" has been affected by strikes aside, from the coal miners' strike, merely means that the labor politicians have again succeeded in influencing the president's policies to the exclusion of the general public or its interests.

Will the president tell the men in the fox-holes that strikes can occur now and there is no penalty of law for it? Does he think that the men in uniform will regard what they are doing as in the category of a sentence to hard labor against the enemy or as a service which they voluntarily perform because they love their country?

Like Foreign Enforcement

The president's announcement that if there are further interruptions workers should be inducted into military service does not sound American, but is very much like the forced labor pronouncements of foreign rulers. American citizens do not like to read that if they do not work they will be inducted into military service—as if good soldiers are made on that basis or as if the military tradition is fostered by being classified as a penalty for striking in a labor dispute.

The president has been poorly advised. If the Congress needs to revise the draft law to get manpower by raising the draft limits to 65 years of age, that could be understood because it would apply equally to all citizens. To ask Congress, however, to make military service apply above the present 45-year limit only to those who go out on strike is to put it in a class of punishment with fines and jail sentences which are specified for violation of federal laws.

Action by Congress Unlikely

Congress not only will never pass such a dishonorable statute, reflecting as it does on the flag and the military service, but it is doubtful if the administration will really ever press for its passage.

The idea doubtless is just one of curious solutions offered the president by his "left-wing" advisers who have apparently persuaded him to veto the so-called anti-strike bill. Or perhaps it is a method of testing public sentiment between now and Friday midnight when the president must decide finally whether to let the Smith-Connally bill become law or veto it.

If it is a veto, what will the president say to Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, who sponsored the measure? What will he say to Representative McCormack, Democratic leader of the House, who supported the bill? What will he say to those members of Congress who were assured when they voted that the president would sign the measure?

What of the Fighters?

But, above all, what will Mr. Roosevelt say to the men in fox-holes and on the ships of war? Will he tell them that he surrendered again to John L. Lewis and the miners' union, that the War Labor Board failed to achieve respect for or obedience to its orders and that the great government of the United States has been given another four months' ultimatum by Mr. Lewis and his union?

If the veto comes—and it appears on the way—the country will ask Congress to pass the bill over the veto. Every vote will be recorded, and the nation can at least know whether members of Congress are going to support the desires of the men in the armed forces or the opinions of the left-wingers and labor politicians who thus far have made a mess of the home front.

In the next twenty-four or forty-eight hours can public opinion manifest itself so as to prevent the consummation of the blunder which is forecast by the president's amazing statement just issued? It is unfortunate that the men in the armed services can't tell their commander-in-chief what they think. But their fathers and mothers and sisters and brothers can still speak.

Bureaucracy Rampant

By Representative Charles W. Vursell, of Illinois, as Reported in the Congressional Record

I believe this following fast will astound the people and surprise many of the members of Congress. They (the O. W. I.) now have employed 417 aliens on their pay roll, many of them refugees and some of them, I am informed, were employed at high salaries to tell the foreign countries about the glories of the American Government who have not lived in this country for over thirty to sixty days.

It would seem to be that a citizen and taxpayer of this country who had lived here and who knew something about the glories of America, to tell to Poland, for instance, could have been employed by Mr. Elmer Davis out of thousands of Polish-American businessmen, mechanics, physicians, or educators (who could talk the Polish language freely and who could do a better job of selling our government of liberty to the people in occupied Poland, holding out to them the necessity of their maintaining their morale until the day of their deliverance.

The same could be said in favor of our Americans of foreign descent representing the French, Danes, Norwegians, Yugoslavians, Greeks, and other foreign nations.

Volumes could be written in opposition to the wide extension and waste of this organization. It is the best example of bureaucracy running rampant. The answer should be given by the support of an amendment to reduce these appropriations by fifty per cent today on the floor of the House, and, in my judgment, it would help to win the war rather than to retard its efforts if half of the money they are asking for is denied them.

Planners Regard Nazi Re-education As Huge Problem

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Can the average child of Nazi ancestry, once born but taken in hand, from the cradle, by civilized folk be educated into "normalcy," as Warren G. Harding called it? It would seem that a start should be made as early as possible. The older the child gets, the presumption is that a lot of Nazism will have to be educated OUT of him, in addition to the civilized dope that his (or her) RE-educators are trying to educate IN.

And when the little cuss has completely grown up, experts incline to the opinion that death or complete subjection of his personality alone can come to his relief—and the relief of his civilized associates, too.

Freak Exceptions

Of course, there is an occasional case of an inherently decent individual, accidentally born into Nazi surroundings, who remains voluntarily respectable all his life. It is assumed that a Nazi is a German, and we have had some corking good citizens, right in this country, of American adoption and German descent. However, just at the present juncture, they are regarded here more or less as freaks.

The question is: Can Nazism, having unquestionably "taken," be eradicated by education?

The issue is being considerably discussed by postwar planners.

The Axis?

It consists of Her Hitler's Nazis, Signor Mussolini's Fascists and the Japs.

Misled Folk

The Italian people, though, classically as generally nice, though misled, folk. Things can be patched up with them quite readily. Tokyo's government is rated as hopeless for ultimate pacification. The few remaining little Quisling outfits do not count.

The difficulty with Germany is that it is chronic.

It is the consensus that the Fatherland must be permanently squelched.

How to keep it suppressed is the problem. It stays beaten only about a generation at a time.

Mere defeat does NOT seem to finish it.

Re-education of its whole people is the remedy urged by intellectuals of the United Nations.

Big Transformation Job

The idea is to lick the tar out of the Nazis of today and to train the young folk into an entirely new psychology in the course of the ensuing three or four decades, while their parents and grandparents are dying off.

Now, can a whole population, running high up into the millions, be transformed like that?

The Italians do not need it. They are o. k., anyway. The little peoples will be tickled pink. I have my own personal notion that the Japs can be converted, once their Samurai are wiped out. We and the rest of the Americas will be in cahoots. Britain? Needless to say!

Reforming the Germans, of the present-day Nazi brand, looks like a job of converting them, to STAY converted.

Branded As "Silly"

Chairman James G. McDonald, of President Roosevelt's advisory committee on political refugees, argued this point at a recent gathering on the subject sponsored by a "just and durable peace conference" before the Washington Federation of Churches, the Maryland church and the Council of Christian Education.

Dr. McDonald does not think we can successfully send Americans abroad to win over Nazi youth. That, he said, is a "silly" re-educational scheme.

He wants a "durable peace—political, economic and religious."

But as to German re-education? It seems to be regarded as too large a contract for immediate consideration.

Factographs

The money paid out to life insurance policyholders and beneficiaries last year would be sufficient to provide an income of more than $45 a week for some 500,000 families for two years.

Cooking has no material effect on the digestibility of egg yolks, but increases digestibility of the whites from about eighty per cent for raw to ninety per cent for cooked whites.

Rubber life rafts now come equipped with tiny lamps scarcely larger than a walnut but powerful enough to be visible many miles.

All the ice in the North Polar cap would be melted if the entire mass of a ton of coal could be converted into energy.

BUTTE, Mont.—There's no spade and hoe work in the Victory Garden that Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Tiffany, who travel for a living, haul around Montana on a trailer.

The trailer is a closed one containing sleeping space for the Tiffanys, besides a refrigerator and pantry for food.

When harvest season comes and the Tiffanys halt beside the road for lunch, Mrs. Tiffany may reach to the top of the trailer and pluck a garden-fresh salad.

Tiffany constructed ten trays across the top of the trailer, providing 20 feet of gardening space.

Resorting to chemiculture, the science of growing things in chemical solutions without soil, he is raising such vegetables as carrots, cauliflower and radishes.

He expects to be on the move with the trailer most of the summer. The job is not too complicated, as Tiffany explains it, and it might even be adapted to apartment house window boxes.

He placed gravel in the trays. A small pump forces chemicals to seep through the gravel, in which the seedlings are planted. The solutions that drain off are caught in a basin and pumped back again.

An inexperienced gardener should obtain expert advice before attempting such a garden, says Tiffany. This advice may be obtained through literature available in many seed stores, or from companies manufacturing the chemicals.

The war will curtail his movements this summer but as a utilities representative he must travel by automobile and has a "C" card.

Tiffany constructed the portable garden at a cost of about $15.

American commercial air lines carried more than four million passengers in 1941.

Shelter Shortage for Men on Leave Acute in Over-Crowded Coast Cities

By HAROLD KEEN
Central Press Correspondent

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—As though the housing of civilians were a trouble enough, communities throughout the war training camps of the west coast today are confronted with a serious new difficulty—providing shelter for thousands of servicemen who descend there every Saturday night.

Not uncommon are the appalling scenes of hundreds of soldiers, sailors and marines herded into Y. M.

C. A. and hotel lobbies, reading rooms, messhalls, sprawled on floors, windowsills, and even on tables after all the "choice" locations, on chairs and couches, are taken.

Other hundreds jack-knife themselves into seats of all-night theaters. Those who can find no place because a certain couch already was occupied.

"I've had that couch every Saturday for the last six weeks," he complained. He actually had the idea he was entitled to it regularly by now.

The men are not charged for this informal type of dormitory service. Some have fat wallets and could afford the best suite in the place; others enter broke as result of making the evening's rounds. But flush or penniless, they're all in the same boat when it comes to obtaining a bed in a room on Saturday night.

Civilians who believe it "serves 'em right" for not returning to camp, where their own bunks await them, simply do not understand the psychology of a serviceman on leave, according to Casebeer.

"Once they're away from the discipline they've been living under for days, weeks or months, they want to enjoy every minute of their week-end liberty," he said. "And they're rather suffer the temporary inconvenience of sleeping on the floor Saturday night than return to the places that inhibit them."

Civic authorities are attempting to cope with the problem in the various cities by providing emergency sleeping facilities. But in establishing dormitories, they run up against city health and sanitation requirements that often stymie the project.

Governor Earl Warren of California, recognizing the need, has directed Dr. Charles Strub of San Francisco to supervise a move for proper quarters for servicemen on leave. It'll mean restful shuteye for a lot of tired lads.

CRAMPED QUARTERS—A soldier snoozes in a phone booth.

In San Diego alone, where 30,000 servicemen converge on week-end liberty, approximately 5,000 are unable to find proper sleeping accommodation every Saturday night, civic officials estimate.

War Workers, Too

All hotel rooms are taken by reservation before week's end in southern California cities bulging from an influx of war workers, as well as men in uniform.

At the San Diego Army-Navy Y. M. C. A., largest institution of its kind in the United States—whose services more than 21,000 men have used daily at peak periods—a daytime recreation room has been converted into a huge dormitory containing 200 cots. In another part of the building, a gymnasium accommodates 125 more cots. There are 400 rooms containing regular beds.

But these only begin to satisfy the tremendous requirements. By midnight, tired servicemen begin bedding themselves down on the floors of the reading room and the lobby, with newspapers for a mattress, and nothing for a pillow. At about 2 a. m., Night Secretary A. J. Casebeer dims the lights and as many as 300 men have taken every available inch of space.

Some are in various stages of undress. A marine has a shirt off, a sailor has removed his shoes and socks. In the close quarters, a man's bare feet are likely to brush the

His Future's in the Air

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Features Writer

WASHINGTON—“Lots of people laugh at me. Others worry that someone will steal my idea,” seventeen-year-old Bill Allen laughed. He stretched his lanky five-foot-eleven-and-a-half inches comfortably in a chair and grinned.

“But I thrive on competition.”

Bill recently filed application with the Civil Aeronautics Administration for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity for twelve suburban helicopter air routes. Since it's a postwar project, he doesn't expect to get that competition he thrives on for some time.

Fast Transportation

The high school senior, who believes that fast transportation always wins over slow, has proposed air routes that would serve New York, Washington, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania cities now using suburban transportation. He also wants permission to serve first and second class post offices in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Bill says the permit was far from his mind until aeronautical experts encouraged him to file for it. But he admits that at the age of 12 he already had his air route idea, and that he exchanged letters with Igor Sikorsky in 1939—the day after he heard about the helicopter. “It seemed like a good idea for convenient short line service,” he admits casually.

Nothing Unusual

Bill doesn't think there's anything amazing about having his big idea at that age. Many a 12-year-old American boy knows exactly what he wants to learn to do when he's grown, he says. And anyway he gives all the credit to his parents — his father a navy aeronautical engineer, let Bill work out his own ideas, and his mother always followed a policy of “watchful waiting.”

There are two reasons behind his filing an application for helicopter routes: He thinks his plan has a chance, and he expects the preliminary proceedings to give him experience he couldn't get any other way, even if the idea falls through.

Born in Dayton, Ohio, Bill grew up in East Orange, N. J., at the time, he says, when the Newark airport was about the busiest in the world. He came to Washington less than two years ago, and will leave this summer to attend Harvard. Bill rates himself about a “B” scholar, is crazy about football, but prefers sailing a boat in Barnegat Bay.

Outlook Good

Since September, Bill has pecked out fifty letters about his plan to important people. Most of the replies patted him on the back, and he's convinced he'll manage to swing the finances if his postwar permit is granted.

The young aviation enthusiast will probably present a paper about the proposed routes in June at a hearing before the CAA. Meanwhile Bill thinks he's lucky that all this has happened during wartime, because a high school boy's ideas will get more attention later than if immediate action were demanded. Anyway, he expects to go to war himself as soon as he's 18 because, he says, “we have to win the war before we can have a future.”

Stamped Envelope Mystery Is Solved

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—Zack Hopper, high school newspaper writer, reported his recent experiment in honesty disclosed “there aren't many Honest Abes in Pueblo.”

He dropped five stamped, self-addressed envelopes on sidewalks at busy places. Not one of the five came back to him.

“It seems that most people who find a sealed envelope let their curiosity get the best of them,” he said. “They read the contents, then, because it doesn't seem important, they don't mail it.”

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—It's a flood, indeed, that floats no good. N. C. Barry was surprised a 200-pound hog came down the current of the river and disembark in his yard. Now Barry is advertising the owner but, meat rationing what it is, isn't too anxious for he is found.

Rubber Situation Outlined in After's Wire

Out Hope for Passenger Car Tires "Sometime in 1944"

Copy of a telegram from W. H. Brown, price administrator, received yesterday by the local Price and Rationing board, outlining the seriousness of the rubber situation, but yet holding out hope for an alleviation of the situation by "sometime in 1944."

Because of the present situation, stressed the need for strict rationing of gasoline coupons and tires.

Although synthetic rubber will be made in the next few months, it will be some time before it is possible to fabricate it into passenger car tires because of a shortage of facilities, equipment and power.

Present Regulations Suffice, it was pointed out that "we do not want to be forced to impose new and more drastic regulations, but this may have to be done if present regulations and advice does not bring the necessary results."

The complete telegram follows: "I know you and your organization here fully realize the necessity for strict adherence to the announced tire conservation regulations particularly during the next few months. We will be making synthetic rubber but there will inevitably be some delay in fabricating it into passenger car tires because of shortage of equipment, facilities and manpower."

"Reports from all over the country indicate that it will help your local boards perform their duty in holding down mileage and thereby reducing the number of requests for new tires if the public were better informed of these facts. I hope and believe it would help all concerned to get through this critical period if you would impress your boards and in turn have them advise the people in your community that all conservation measures should be strictly adhered to."

Limit Eligibility
"We do not want to be forced to impose any new and more drastic regulations other than limiting eligibility for Grade III tires, but this may have to be done if present regulations and advice does not bring the necessary results to tide us all over this period while we are scraping the bottom of the barrel for tires to keep essential cars in service."

"The people should not request new tires that are not absolutely needed and all used tires should be kept in service until recapping is necessary and then recapped before asking to have them replaced with new tires."

"I am confident that in possession of the facts the American public will co-operate to achieve our goal of keeping cars rolling. I hope that by sometime in 1944 our supply of rubber and tires may be adequate to enable us to remove most, if not all of the existing regulations."

Mrs. Andrews announced that Mrs. Gilbert Miller will supervise the erection of the outdoor fireplace and work will begin at the meeting at 6:30 o'clock June 30. ## Axis Prisoners Will Be Kept Out Of Garrett County

Action Is Taken after Objections Are Raised by Citizens

OAKLAND, June 24—Due to objections of a number of Garrett county citizens there will be no war prison camps in this area, it was announced by State Senator Bernard I. Gonder, upon his return to Oakland following a conference with State Forester Joseph F. Kaylor, in Baltimore, and with Dr. T. B. Symons, director of Extension, University of Maryland.

It had been planned to use 750 to 800 Axis prisoners of war in Allegany and Garrett counties working in the forests and on orchards and also to harvest food. They were to be housed at the Swallow Falls and Savage River areas in abandoned CCC camps. Prisoners were also to be used to cut and haul timber from the forests, build roads and trails in the state forests.

Senator Gonder, who is a member of the board of state forests and parks, said that as soon as the plan was announced he began receiving objections. Officials of the Pennsylvania Electric Company raised objections due to the danger of sabotage of their hydro-electric dam in this county which is now under guard twenty-four hours of the day; and many residents of the Deep Creek Lakes area expressed their dislike for the nearness of the prisoners who might escape, unless under heavy guard, and terrorize the neighborhood.

The senator said statistics showed that about five per cent of any group of Axis prisoners were "desperate" and would go any length to do some act which they thought would help their country.

Those who raised objections pointed out that they could be better taken care of at Fort George G. Meade, where there are enough soldiers to guard them and where the country was not mountainous and in heavy forest. The possibility of escape here would be very favorable, it was argued, and finally some of them declared, "Why put Axis prisoners down in the beauty spots of this country anyway?" In response to the objections Senator Gonder arranged for a conference with Kaylor in Baltimore and with Dr. Symons in College Park. He told them that the people of Garrett county just "didn't want any Axis prisoners in the area" and obtained a promise from both men that the prisoners would not be placed here.

Sprinkling Lawns

health officer, said that if the pool is not replenished with large amounts of water daily that at the end of the day the pool contains much bacteria. Danger from eye, ear and nose infections would be great if the pool had not been closed, Dr. Frantz stated.

Consumption of water in Cumberland has varied from nine and three quarters to ten and a half million gallons daily for the past eight months and the line from the lakes has been tetering on a ragged edge for a year, Bruce pointed out.

"There's enough water in Lakes Koon and Gordon dams to supply a city three times as large as Cumberland but the line is unable to carry the amount of water which is needed at the present time," Bruce said.

Muffed Chance in 1941
At the 1941 session of the state legislature, a $500,000 bond issue for an auxiliary water line for Cumberland was approved but before it received the "go ahead" signal a referendum was tacked on it. It was not until a year later, however, that the voters of Cumberland approved it at the polls.

It was the intention of the mayor and council at that time to get government aid and start work on the project immediately after the measure was passed at Annapolis but the delay of a year caused by the referendum being attached knocked the project in the head as the United States entered the war in December, 1941, and the auxiliary water line fell in line with other postwar projects.

In spite of the fact that the construction of the line would not have affected taxes or brought about an increase in water rentals, it was declared that the voters have the final say on the issue. The bonds were to have been paid off through earnings of the water department as are other issues.

Emergency measures to curtail the use of water were ordered yesterday at a conference attended by Bruce, Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney; Mayor Thomas F. Conlon, Commissioners William J. Edwards and James Orr and Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Meal Supervisor Is Named for the Cumberland Area

Baltimore, June 24, (AP)—Miles F. Baldrige (CQ), state meat marketing supervisor and food distribution director, announced today the appointment of William L. Frazer as area meat supervisor for the Cumberland area.

Frazer assumed office immediately. Area supervisors for the Frederick, Eastern and District of Columbia areas will be appointed shortly, Baldrige said.

ROBERT L. GLENN DIES IN BALTIMORE

LONACONING, June 24—Robert Longridge Glenn, aged 63, died yesterday afternoon in Baltimore where he was spending several days in carrying out his duties as organizer for District No. 50 of the United Mine Workers of America.

Born in Lonaconing, Mr. Glenn spent his entire life in this section and worked as a coal miner here until his appointment as organizer five years ago. He was also chairman of Draft Board No. 4 in Frostburg, and a former member of the House of Delegates.

Mr. Glenn was the son of the late Francis Glenn, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Longridge Glenn resides here. His wife, the former Isabelle McFarlane, died six years ago in Baltimore.

Besides his mother a son, Francis, of Lonaconing, and a daughter, Mrs. C. L. Williams, Baltimore, also survive. Other survivors include five brothers, Charles, Smithfield, Pa.; Frank and William, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Matthew, Detroit, Mich.; and John, Flemington, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Theodore Voehl, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Margaret Evans and Miss Agnes Glenn, both of Port Wayne; and one grandchild.

Misses Mary and Helen Woods are visiting friends and relatives in Baltimore.

Training Classes Are Not Operating

For the first time since March, 1941, there are no training classes in operation in this county for the training of war workers, it was announced by Eugene Harpold, Garrett county coordinator.

Since 1941 Harpold said classes have been operated in Kitzmiller, Potomac CCC camp, Swallow Falls camp, Meadow Mountain camp, Grantsville, Oakland Training center, Shiner's Tin shop, Oakland, and Oakland High school.

A total of 440 men and women have been awarded Vocational Training Record cards by the United States Office of Education, for completing one of the training courses. Approximately 150 others, he estimated, have taken training but left classes before completion.

Courses have been offered in sheet metal, acetylene welding, electric welding, carpentry, aircraft wood-working, radio repair, machine shop, auto mechanics and blue print reading.

The Farm machinery repair program is still operating and is becoming more popular than ever due to the lack of new equipment and parts. This program does not award training certificates, Harpold said, but gives the farmer an opportunity to keep his equipment in good shape at little or no cost. At present there are five centers in this county where well equipped shops are set up for the people who care to use them. There is no charge for service and many of the materials needed are on hand to do the job.

Centers are in Oakland, Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville schools and at the Keyser Ridge garage. About 200 farmers have taken advantage of this program since its beginning over a year ago.

Wardens Will Meet

All air raid wardens of Zone No. 2 are requested to attend a special meeting at zone headquarters, Roeder apartments, Piedmont avenue, at 8 o'clock this evening.

For example, using the tables, a married man with one dependent and earning $52 a week will have a tax deduction of $5 a week. By an exact computation, his tax would be $4.40 (twenty per cent of the difference between $52 and $30).

If the same man made $58 a week, the tax to be withheld, using the tables, still would be $5. By exact computation, it should be $5.60.

Minimum Tax Is 10 Cents
Minimum tax under the table system is ten cents a week — for a single man with no dependents, earning from $10 to $15 a week.

status of the anti-poll-tax bill, now bottled up in committee in the United States Senate, and the council voted to wire senators on behalf of the bill and to urge affiliates to do likewise. The Lucas bill to keep polls open from 6 to 9 p. m. to make it possible for war workers to vote, was endorsed.

The council voted to send wires to the United States Senate urging that that body restore funds to the OPA and the OWI, threatened with extinction by the action of the House. Similar action was voted in behalf of the civilian defense activities of the OGD, whose appropriation of $1,600,000 was cut out by the House.

Discuss Rent Situation
John Sharp, acting president of Local 26 of the Rubber Workers, and a member of the War Man Power Panel for this area, charged that the Kelly Company is not abiding by the manpower stabilization agreement, but is refusing to grant releases until the review board has taken action in each case. The council accepted the credentials of two fraternal delegates from International Typographical Union No. 244. This union withdrew from the A.F. of L. but has not as yet affiliated with the CIO.

John Neal, secretary of the council, discussed the situation on rent stabilization, and urged that any individuals who have had their rents raised recently communicate with him.

Claude McIntyre of Rubber Workers Local 26, vice-chairman of the council, presided in the absence of Chairman Ralph C. Beard.

IDEA HELPS ARMY

MRS. FLORA SMOTHERMAN
AP Features
MANSFIELD, O.—The old family sewing machine gave Mrs. Flora Smotherman an idea to increase production of army binoculars at the Westinghouse plant here. She adapted the method used for winding bobbins to preparing military wax for waterproofing binoculars. When threadlike wax comes out of a machine, Mrs. Smotherman winds it on a cardboard roll instead of using the old, slower method of placing it on flat pieces of paper. Her idea brought her a check from the company, a special citation and a recommendation for a "production soldier" medal.

West Virginia Battle Maneuvers Planned

WASHINGTON, June 24. (AP)—Army maneuvers, including battle exercises with live ammunition, will be held in the mountains of West Virginia beginning in the near future, the War department announces.

Most of the selected area is in the Monongahela national forest, and army officials are negotiating now for rights of access on a small amount of private property not included in the forest.

The maneuver area includes parts of Preston, Tucker, Grant, Randolph, Pendleton, Webster, Pocahontas, Nicholas and Greenbrier counties.

The West Virginia maneuvers, under the direction of the Thirtieth Army Corp., will be the first held in that state since the start of the war, but the army said the site would be utilized for similar maneuvers for the duration.

State Relief Clients Declared in Need

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—The failure to increase allotments to many Maryland relief clients to keep pace with the rise in the cost of living has caused hardships among those unemployable because of physical handicaps, Thomas S. J. Waxter asserts.

Waxter, Baltimore city public welfare director, commented in an interview that during the depression allowances were gauged as nearly as possible to keep clients on the same general economic level as their neighbors. This was done to prevent undesirable social effects, he said.

Since the war began the gauging has not been practiced, Waxter added, and many counties have declined to grant higher food and rental allotments.

200 Boys Apply For Jobs on Farms

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 24 (AP)—Applications from 200 boys, from Annapolis and Baltimore, have been received by the Anne Arundel county office of the United States employment service, to work as harvest hands this summer.

John M. Whitmore, manager of the local office, said that the boys "had shown the greatest enthusiasm for doing their part in the war effort" by helping with the harvest.

The boys will be registered by the employment office as "ready to go to work on county farms immediately."

CHICAGO—What makes the wild waves wild will be answered for many on July 1 when Chicago's 30 miles of beaches and 46 pools gets a war-time shock—girl life guards.

The bronzed Galahads who used to be lords of all the sand they surveyed have gone to war, to factories, to farms. So what? So girl guards, mermaids with muscles, will step forward to take their place.

When Chicago's 3,000,000 go down to the shore to cool off from blistering city heat, these Lorelei with life preservers will be on hand to direct and protect.

How did this war emergency happen? The city had no other choice when but a little more than 100 men applied for the 225 jobs for which 3,000 used to sign up in the piping times of peace. The Chicago Park district, facing the inevitable, put out a call for damsels.

job is D. Clark Leach, chairman of the Central Amateur Athletic Union, their examiner. Says Leach: "I have a lot of faith in these girls. Life-saving utilizes more skill than strength, anyway. Our biggest hazard seems to be five and six-year-old children, and I think women will be better at watching them than the men were."

The Lorelei no longer sings by the sea in '43, she's standing guard on a new home front—the lake front.

Laundry Waste Pipe Showers Money

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—The kids in Clarksburg have found that following the fire trucks can be profitable as well as fun, if the fire is in the right place.

Answering a hurry-up call at a local laundry, firemen arrived with the usual crowd of youthful onlookers and discovered that accumulated lint in a waste pipe was blazing.

When the pipe was removed an assortment of pennies, dimes and quarters as well as other odds and ends showered down. The children swooped on the treasure and did a rapid job of collecting.

Apparently the coins had been drawn from the pockets of clothing cleaned at the plant.

The American angler fish, which is four feet long, eats other fishes its own size.

as a correspondent at the Olympic games in 1936, Mermaid Scanlan insists:

"I think women can be just as capable as men at this life-saving job. Women are instinctively more cautious than men and therein lies the little secret to what will be their success."

Prevent Accidents

"The trick is to prevent accidents—drownings. The day of spectacular dives and rescues is over. It's only doggone good sense to watch that people don't get into deep water figuratively. If they do, then throw them a rope. Give them something to hang on to, whether it's a rope or the side of a boat. There is a psychology there that banishes their fear."

Wrinkling her pert nose at old-fashioned thrill rescues she continued:

"The idea that if a drowning person grabs you and tries to pull you under you must clout him one on the jaw until he is knocked unconscious and so releases you, is ridiculous. Simply go under water and the person in peril will let go and then you can complete the rescue."

The red wool bathing suit will be these girls' badge of courage. Backing them up in their conviction that they will do a creditable

Puts Whole Salary Into War Bonds

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. (AP)—Others can equal but scarcely top the bond buying record of Mrs. Willard White, who works in the refrigeration section of Post Engineers here.

No ten-percenter, Mrs. White puts 100 percent of her salary into war bonds. Each month she receives three $50 bonds and two checks for slightly over three dollars balance. These checks she saves until they are enough to buy more bonds.

Her explanation: "My husband is a captain in the 1101st Combat Engineers is doing his part, so I'm trying to do mine."

Ride 'Em, Copper!

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas. (AP)—It was almost, but not quite, like a rodeo for Arkansas City police. First, some hogs got loose on 8 street and they had to capture 'em. Then there was a complaint about some sheep roaming on Summit Street. Toward evening a cow got loose in Paris Park. To round out the day a vicious dog was reported and a woman wanted her cat rescued from a tree.

A 'Hunting' He Goes For Odd Instruments

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Tracking down scarce but vital instruments to aid the war effort is one of the jobs of Lieut. (jg) T. P. Price, 250-pound former Princeton crewman and now naval adviser to the WPB here.

It took him six weeks to locate a tachometer, an instrument to measure speed by revolutions. He found it in a small, obscure Louisville garage. A month was spent seeking a pyrometer, a heat-recording device, which he stumbled upon in an office a block away. In the past three months, he has uncovered dozens of such items.

A Man Wants To Pay

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—It happens once in a while—but not often—so State Trooper J. J. Coady was more than a little surprised when a motorist came in to report he had hit a parked car and damaged a fender. The motorist said he had tried to get in touch with the owner and failed and asked Coady to see if he could find him. The motorist wanted to pay for the damage.

Child Will Talk Or Walk Earlier If Not Prompted

Dr. Myers Recommends Reading from Well-Illustrated Page

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
Many a child would talk or walk earlier than he does, if no one urged him to do so. Some children, indeed, talk or walk very late because their parents try so very hard to make them. The moment you annoy a child when you want him to learn, you hamper his learning. Talk to your infant almost constantly, in soft tones, while you care for him during his waking periods. Don't of course, do so very often at other times lest he command your attention constantly. As he grows older, creeps, walks and toddles, talk to him a great deal about what you are doing for him or with him or about what he is doing. Have him associate with other children of his age. But don't urge him to talk.

Read to him from a well-illustrated page. Begin as soon as he will look at a picture for half a minute at a stretch. This is just talking from the book about the picture. Remove the book as soon as his interest lags.

Keep on reading to him as he gains in enjoyment of it.

Parents Need Patience
If your child is slow in developing speech, be patient. Have the doctor check on his hearing. If as he talks, he does not speak plainly, or has difficulty with certain sounds, make such sounds and say such words slowly and distinctly. Use them more often than other words, even selecting rhymes or stories including them.

Be careful not to make him self-conscious of his difficulties. Never keep at it to the point of annoying, nor trying to help him when others are present. You might get the child of four or five to watch your mouth as you say these words or sounds or look in his mirror as you or he does.

If your young child stutters, write me for my special bulletin on "Stuttering." Ever so many mothers who have followed the instructions in it have written me that the stuttering disappeared. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Suppose your boy or girl of 15 cursed you.

A. I should try to be calm and silent then and wait for several hours or days till he and I had re-established fine relations before saying a word about the matter. Then I should attempt, in the tenderest way I could, to induce him to resolve to try not to repeat such abusiveness toward me or anybody else. Thereafter I should compliment him on the slightest gain in self-control. If he were only four or five, however, I should immediately spank him soundly for calling me or anybody else in my presence an ugly name.

Q. Do you have some suggestions to help my high school daughter study more effectively?

A. I shall be glad to send her my "Tips to Students" without cost to her. Just have her write me at 235 East Forty-Fifth street, New York city, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. Also I have prepared a special list of books on how to study effectively, to be had in like manner.

Q. Our baby 18 months old has gotten into the habit of running away from us when we want to have him come to us, hoping, it seems that we will chase him.

A. In case he starts running, stand indifferently where you are, unless he faces danger. When all is calm and you are near him, get him. Don't expect a child so young to come to you when you ask him to do so.

Q. What would you do if an uncle or neighbor constantly teased your young child?

A. I should try to prevail on the person to quit annoying the youngster. If necessary, I should cut off friendly relations rather than to have the child so harmed.

Air Warning Service Names
Two Captains*Joseph Freeland and Noah Beeman Head Outpost in Frostburg

FROSTBURG, June 24—The instructors, captains, lieutenants and officers of Outpost, 24-B United States Air Warning Service met last evening at American Legion hall, mechanic street, and elected Joseph Freeland and Noah Beeman captains. The outpost now has seven captains, one to serve each day of the week and fourteen lieutenants, two to serve each day of the week, supervising the routine duties of the observation post on mechanic street and to arrange the daily shifts of the 129 assistant observers, who constitute the personnel of the outpost.

It was reported that a large number of assistant observers have completed the airplane identification course and it was decided to change the flash message telephone calls to the Baltimore filtration station by having the actual name of the plane used instead of merely telephoning the number of motors.

Chairman Fred Boettner, chief observer, announced that a meeting of all members of the outpost association would be held Wednesday, June 30, when the matter of men missing shifts will be discussed and action taken in cases where the absentees are proven guilty of being absent without a valid excuse.

The meeting last evening was attended by twenty-five officials and leaders of the Outpost association.

Detroit Practically Back to Normal

DETROIT, June 24. (AP)—Detroit approached normalcy today and Governor Harry F. Kelly modified emergency restrictions including a general curfew and liquor ban imposed Monday as a means of curbing race rioting that brought death to more than thirty persons and injury to nearly 800.

All restrictions were lifted in the outlying Metropolitan areas of Macomb and Oakland counties, while in Wayne county (Detroit) tonight's curfew was set for midnight, instead of 10 p. m., and places of amusement were allowed to remain open until 11 p. m. Since Monday all theaters had been forced to close at 9 p. m.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., recommended that restrictions be eased after Police Commissioner John H. Witherspoon reported that the city was fast returning to normalcy.

Wild Rabbits Are Playing Havoc With Gardens*Vegetables Are Being Destroyed in Mt. Savage by the Animals

MT. SAVAGE, June 24.—Victory gardens in this community are in danger of being completely demolished by unusual thieves. A large number of wild rabbits have invaded the property of the residents in several sections of town and gardeners have reported that rows of lettuce, cabbage, beans and other green vegetables are being destroyed by the small animals.

On Main street a resident discovered a nest of tiny rabbits, carefully covered with fur and straw, in the top tier of a terraced rock garden. Other citizens state that the rabbits are living in long furrows dug in lawns and flower beds. Several people have caught rabbits and taken them into the woods near town where they will be out of danger from dogs.

It is the first time in the history of the town that the rabbits have invaded the center of the community. The animals are much smaller than the usual run of wild rabbits, but the damage they have done to date in the gardens is almost unbelievable.

Brief Items

A party for the benefit of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department will be held Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Junior Order hall.

An important meeting of the American Legion and the citizens of Mt. Savage will be held Sunday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Junior Order hall. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the advisability of donating the cannon in War Memorial square to the scrap metal drive. The meeting will be under the direction of Anthony Monahan, chairman of the committee in charge of the cannon project.

The Youth Fellowship group of St. George's church will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the parish house.

Personals

Lieut. and Mrs. Oren Womack, Washington, are visiting Mrs. Womack's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Walsh.

Mrs. Alice McNamee and daughter, Miss Coleta McNamee, returned yesterday after visiting the Rev. Edward Malloy, Washington.

Agency Effects Rehabilitation Of Drink Addict

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1943, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

You may have seen in the papers the other day where a workman picked up a gold nugget in a dry ditch that netted him a very comfortable little sum. Thousands of people had passed by the same spot, but to the man with the "camera eye" went the gold nugget.

I wish to call attention today to another nugget many have overlooked—an organization known as "Alcoholics Anonymous," which enables the unfortunate drink addict to be rehabilitated free of charge, without drugs, talking down to, or smug scoldings.

The man who could never keep a job, who is losing opportunities, family, friends has new vistas of happiness opened up for him by this remarkable organization. The following letter explains itself:

Husband Lost Position

"When I was married, everyone thought I was the most fortunate girl in my class; it was just a year after graduation," writes "A Happy Wife." "My husband had a good position in a bank, in which his family had a considerable interest. But banking was never congenial to him. Even in the early days of our marriage he could never face the ups and downs of business without bracing himself with a drink. "Later his distrust of himself grew to morbidity and he constantly depended on his hip-flask to get by. The end was that he lost his position, went from bad to worse until we sank to paupers. Even my wedding ring had to go. My good parents took the children. "I stuck by my husband because I believed I understood him as no one else did. His better qualities—and he had plenty of them—were sunk in the rooted belief he was a failure. Everyone urged me to divorce him, but I couldn't. He seemed so helpless.

"By chance I happened to read an article of yours in the newspaper, telling of the work which has been accomplished by Alcoholics Anonymous, and offering to send work how one could get in touch with their central organization. You answered immediately and I wrote them.

Victim Must Want Cure

"The only thing the organization asked for was that a victim should earnestly desire to be cured. There were no drugs, no money asked for, no superior lectures handed out, only brotherhood—a genuine fellowship from those who had been rescued from the curse of drink. At first the struggle was terrific, but my husband, with the help he received, tried hard, and I believe that any man who puts up a similar fight can be saved.

"We're all together again, my husband, the children and I, and I write this letter to you in the hope that it may accomplish for some other family what it has done for us."

I shall be pleased to put anyone in touch with the central headquarters of this organization, upon receipt of a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

Realistic View

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I'm 21 years of age, and ever since I was 16 I've had to sneak around to meet the boys. I never was allowed to go with my own choice, but had to go with those my parents liked. I am engaged, but since then I have met someone I love more. Do you think I should tell the boy I'm engaged to? He's overseas now and has been for three years. When we first became engaged, he always said if I met someone I like more, he would give me my freedom. I don't want to get married, but intend to wait until after the war. Also, my boy friend may be having a good time, and perhaps he'll be glad to break the engagement too. Three years is a long time, and a great many things may happen. K. L. M.

While it may be cruel to break an engagement with a soldier overseas, the bitter draught may be the best medicine, if you no longer love him. I judge from what you write me that he's not as ardent toward you as he was in the beginning. I may be that he would welcome a release.

If you really have fallen out of love with your soldier boy and he has told you that if you meet someone you like better to call it off, you have no reason to hesitate about writing him an honest, frank letter about it. There's no excuse for deceiving him.

WAAC Court-Martials

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Is a member of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps subject to court martial? E. W. T. "A court martial shall have the power to impose such punishment upon officers and personnel of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps subject to its jurisdiction, as it might impose upon officers and personnel of the army of substantially equivalent grade or position, upon conviction of a like offense." I'm informed.

Benefits for Discharged Soldier

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was in the army for three months. As I am past 38 years I had a chance to accept a defense job which I did, and was released from the army. I was given an honorable discharge and was found to be in good health when relieved.

If anything should show up, such as an injury or illness due to having been in the service, am I eligible to use the Veterans hospitals?

EX-SOLDIER

The honorably discharged soldier may report his condition to the Veterans' Administration. If examination proves that the injury or illness was due to service in the army, he may be eligible for medical benefits.

Nervous Shock

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About two years ago I received a shock to my nervous system and since then I have never been the same. My nerves are jumpy all the time and I stay away from friends and neighbors because I am ashamed of the way I act. I have a nice home and a good husband who is always willing to help in any way he can to get me back to my normal self.

Sometimes I feel as though I can't go on another minute. I'm afraid that something will snap. I'm willing to do anything you suggest. So much of the time I go around in a daze. I know where I am and what I'm doing, but everything isn't clear to me. Please offer your advice.

W. O.

Apart from treatment by a specialist, you can do much for yourself. Perhaps you do not have a garden, or pay devoted attention to one. If you can't have your own garden, sign up with some Victory Garden workers in your home town. There's nothing like delving in the earth, planting things, and seeing them grow to restore people to a normal point of view.

The remedy in your case is "anything to get you out of yourself." If the garden work is out of the question, try to assist in a Red Cross unit, or enlisting for some type of selfless war work. Today, the country has need of every pair of hands. Forget yourself in working for peace and freedom.

Laudable Ambition

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a girl of sweet 16, but life hasn't been so sweet to me. I had to miss quite a bit of school on account of my eyes and tonsils. I want to go to a vocational school in my state, where I wouldn't have to stay in a (Continued on Page 15, Col. 1)

grade for two years. I'm so anxious to finish school.

I'm afraid to ask my father if I may go, because he'll be sure to object. We live on a farm, and he could get along without me, as he has a number of farm hands and doesn't need me at the present time. I'm not the kind to run away, so will you please tell me what to do?

W. D.

While everyone hopes a second depression will not follow this war, as it did World War No. 1, it's well to be fortified against such a day of wrath. The more education you have the better are your chances of getting a good job. A girl who's had Vocational School training is in a better position to command a decent pay envelope than one who was unable to finish high school.

I think if you bring these things to your father's attention, some time when he's in a good humor, you will be able to convince him.

Burial of Soldiers

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it true that soldiers, who are not sent overseas during the war, are sent over after the war to bury the dead? How long does it take to discharge soldiers from the army after the war is over?

WONDERING

There is no truth in this statement. Soldiers over there take care of burials in American cemeteries established at various points.

The second question cannot be answered exactly. After World War I, the majority of men were demobilized within a year.

Difference in Ages

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 26 years old and have fallen in love with a man who loves me just as much. However, he's 36 years old and thinks there's too much difference in our ages. Both of us have been married before. I know we could be happy together because we have so much in common. What do you think?

G. M.

A man really in love does not consider that a difference of ten years puts him at a disadvantage. And of course, it does not. It may be that he is one of the long-engagement boys who waste a girl's time and youth. Better make sure he means what he says.

Attention, Men!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it a joke or are men actually prohibited by law from wearing pink and blue sweaters? I read this in a newspaper.

D. W.

China out, men, three deep breaths, and stand firm! A check with the War Production Board revealed that "in the case of men's sweaters, it was felt that a limit of six colors from a suggested list of twenty-four would probably eliminate the pretty, but unessential shades of baby blue and baby pink for men."

News for Seamstresses

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'd like to do something for defense but feel that apart from rolling bandages for the Red Cross, I'm not qualified. Do you know of anything else a seamstress could do?

MARY

Dozens of such letters have come to this column from women who feel the urge to do more active work than the very essential job of rolling bandages. The Office of War Information says: "If you've made buttonholes on a machine, you can spot-weld a plane bound for Berlin and take your place among the millions of American women on the labor front." Consult the nearest United States Employment office. You can get the address from your phone book or post office.

Japs Who Can Vote

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

May a Japanese born in the United States vote in elections other than those concerning schools?

EX-CALIFORNIAN

The supreme court refused to review a decision of the federal circuit court in San Francisco that Japanese born in the United States are American citizens and entitled to vote. John T. Regan had challenged the ruling, declaring that "dishonesty, deceit and hypocrisy are racial characteristics of the Japanese," and therefore are not fit to be American citizens.

Battle Wound Deaths Decline

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What is the percentage of deaths from wounds in this war? Are there any figures on this question?

M. S.

The percentage of deaths from wounds has been greatly reduced, due to modern medical treatment with blood plasma and sulfa drugs. Statistics on one of the great bat-

There's nothing wrong about having bridesmaids and ushers. There's as much reason for a romantic, "picture" wedding now as ever. And they are as numerous now as ever.

City Farmer Cultivates Weed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Morris Simon, assistant city editor on The News-Sentinel, read so much about Victory gardens he planted one himself.

He obtained some tomato slips from a neighbor and planted each carefully. A week later Mrs. Simon discovered a useless ragweed in their tomato row.

Simon, being a city farmer, thought the weed was a tomato plant and had cultivated it with enthusiasm.

Plan Victory Garden Exhibit at State Fair

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—Professional gardeners are expected to be too busy to place exhibits in the Colorado State Fair this fall and so the Fair Association is planning a new Victory Garden department.

Competition will be limited to the back yard and the small farm gardener. County farm agents and the professional gardeners will be too busy, because of the manpower shortage, to leave their farms, says Frank H. Means, the fair manager.

Barracks in Church

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Delicately stained glass windows look down on the orderly hubbub and occasional horseplay in one barracks for aviation trainees at the University of Chattanooga. The boys are quartered in a remodeled church where double-decker bunks have replaced straight backed pews.

COSTUME VOGUE

SONG OF THE SHELL: It's a decorative song this summer, as witness this necklace of pink and blue shells, designed by Coro.

Tell That One To the Iceman!

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tall tales concerning the canines' bone shortage, which have included the one about Rover being forced to bury even greasy chips, reached a new high with this:

The Rev. R. C. Williams reported that when his wife tossed their pup an ice cube the cube split in two, the dog gobbled one piece—and buried the other.

Big Wind Blows Deed 100 Miles

FORT PAYNE, Ala. (AP)—The day after Hackburg, Ala., was hit by a tornado, James Long found a deed to a Hackburg cemetery lot in his field. The deed had blown more than 100 miles.

An investigation revealed it had been issued to A. H. Powell, postmaster of Hackburg, shortly before the storm hit. Powell and his wife were killed by the twister.

Up the Hard Way In Two Armies

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—W. Quale Setliffe, a former Chattanooga, worked his way up from a buck private to a captain in the American Army in the last World War.

This time, just to be a little different, he did the same thing in the Canadian army. He enlisted in Canada in 1940 and his family recently received word of his promotion to captain.

Frostburg Downs North End, 7-5

FROSTBURG, June 24.—Driving across three runs in the sixth inning, the Lemmert Hardware Company nine came from behind to smash out a 7-5 victory over the North End Club of Cumberland in a Junior Baseball League game played on State Teachers college diamond this evening.

The local team opened its first home game in style by scoring three runs in the first inning and adding another marker in the fourth. The North Enders came back with two runs in the second frame and then went ahead, 5-4, by driving three runs across the plate in the fifth.

The batteries were Lou Skidmore and Hanna for Frostburg and Lou Baker and Cumiskey for North End.

Browns and White Sox Split Even

ST. LOUIS, June 24 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox collected sixteen hits off pitchers Al Hollingsworth and Archie McKain in winning from the St. Louis Browns 9 to 2, after the Brownies had washbuckled their way to an 8 to 7 victory in the first half of a doubleheader today.

In a sixth inning uprising that brought McKain to the mound in a relief role the White Sox on five hits managed as many runs to break a 1-1 tie and went on to score once more in each of the remaining three innings.

Chicago's other big sixth inning in the first game and a White Sox run in the ninth which tied the score nettled the Browns. When an error put Don Gutteridge on first, and pitcher Bill Swift walked Milton Byrnes and hit Chet Laabs to load the bases, Vernon Stephens singled to centerfield to score Gutteridge with the winning run.

Big Ten Suspends Eligibility Rules For the Duration

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, June 24 (P)—Each university in the Western Conference today was assured of the manpower to field representative football teams this fall when Big Ten faculty representatives waived all basic eligibility requirements for the duration.

In making this revolutionary decision, the faculty committee bypassed the necessity of rewording conference by-laws merely by making the word "intercollegiate" ineffective.

It has become obvious that for the duration intercollegiate athletic programs are to be essentially activities of the armed services, said Prof. Ralph W. Aigler of the University of Michigan, chairman of the faculty committee. "It is the sense of the conference that the widest possible opportunities for participation by the student bodies of the member institutions in competitive sports should be made available, particularly as a means of inspiration for their most effective contribution to the war effort."

Many of the conference rules of eligibility are the outgrowth of considerations which have little, if any, force during the present emergency. Competition during the war period sponsored by a college or university shall not be deemed "intercollegiate" as such term is used in the conference rules and regulations.

About the only eligibility requirements remaining intact were in respect to regular enrollment as a student, and non-receipt of compensation for athletic participation as a member of a team.

The faculty committee left scholarship requirements for eligibility up to each school and indicated the possibility of relaxing them to broaden the scope of participation in keeping with the main objective of training men for the armed forces through athletics. The Big

Detroit Tigers Wallop Cleveland

DETROIT, June 24 (P)—For the first time this season the Detroit Tigers seized a series from the rival Cleveland Indians by gaining a 7 to 4 triumph in a twilight game to-night for Virgil (Pir) trucks seventh victory. The two clubs split a double bill yesterday.

Trucks spaced eleven hits, including homers by Oris Hockett and Russ Peters. Meantime the Tigers chased Jim Bagby, usually their nemesis, in a four-run second inning. Bagby suffered his fifth defeat. The other three runs came off Allie Reynolds in the sixth.

The 6,817 paying customers, second smallest twilight crowd here in two years, was supplemented by 2,000 army troops, who came not keep the peace but to enjoy the game as fans.

FOR THE GAME'S SAKE

NEW YORK, June 23—Gunder Haegg's decision concerning the various distances over which he is willing to compete in races lying ahead of him has stirred the A. A. U., specifically Daniel J. Ferris, the hard-working and efficient secretary to comb the country for ambitious two-milers and 2,000 and 3,000-meter specialists.

As we now know, Gunder wants to run two miles in Chicago, July 2; two miles in Los Angeles; 3,000 meters in San Francisco; two miles in Boston; and 2,000 meters in Cleveland. The last two events of his tour have been awarded to Pittsburgh, Aug. 7, and Washington, Aug. 14, with a farewell appearance in this city, exact time and exact distance yet to be fixed.

The honor of appearing as a competitor against Gunder the great will probably enable Mr. Ferris to enlist a goodly number of opponents wherever Haegg runs. But we have more than a sneaking suspicion that the honor, such as it is, will be all his rivals will get. This Swedish marvel isn't human, athletically speaking.

The stamp of genius appears in all his habits and reactions. He is an original. A Swedish newspaper man who crossed the Atlantic with Gunder says the runner hardly appeared out of his room during the journey and so far as he knows slept in his clothes. He would have none of the time-honored formulae prior to the race last Saturday. He refused to be massaged and declined to leave his dressing room to warm up. Geniuses are apt to be unconventional and unusual, and Gunder eminently is both.

A Super-Champion
Seriously, we suspect that how ever widely Mr. Ferris curbs the land he will dig up no one qualified to dispute Haegg's present status as a solo runner; not even Greg Rice.

Yet, to be fair, there is hope concerning the mighty mite. Obviously, he was afflicted with a stitch last Sunday even before he had completed two miles of the course. Hand pressing against his side, he was so graphic a picture of a suffering athlete as to cause many to fear he would not finish the race. As a matter of fact, he finished only on grit.

Yes, hope concerning Greg exists. But, we have discovered, only a faint hope among students of track form. Nature designed Gunder to be an epoch-making distance runner. His long legs do not piston; they seem to stretch out like resilient lengths of sensitized steel wafting a spare body through the air as easily as a leaf is borne on the autumn wind. He is a freak, a machine, whereas Greg is a normal human. Rice is a champion but not the super-champion which Haegg definitely is.

Yet—with what warrant of reason we know not—A. A. U. authorities fully expect Rice to reappear against Haegg in the Chicago meet and in meetings lying beyond. It is pointed out that Greg likes the distances selected by Haegg better than the 5,000 meters, and so far as official attitude concerning his touring is concerned Dan Ferris seems to think there will be no trouble about his getting a leave of absence from the United States Marine service enabling him to compete all along the line against Haegg.

Engaged as a physical instructor at the King's Point base, it is not thought a few weeks' absence would have any serious effect while, at the same time, all these special meetings will be held in the interest of raising funds for patriotic causes. Of course, it may be that Rice is too much interested in the service in which he is now engaged to go touring. In this connection it might be pointed out he displayed neither enthusiasm nor alacrity in submitting his entry as a competitor Sunday.

Seasoning for the Victory Garden
 By DEAN HALLIDAY

The victory garden can be made beautiful, as well as practical by the use of herbs as edging plants. There are many pot herbs, salad herbs and seasoning herbs from which to choose.

Sage, one of the most important of the kitchen herbs, can be grown from seeds, or plants can be purchased which are ready to set out. Once started more plants of the sage can be propagated by means of cuttings, layering or divisions. To keep the plants growing neatly, when sage is used as an edging plant, they should be divided biennially, otherwise they are apt to become straggly.

The shoots of sage should be gathered for drying purposes before the flower stems develop, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. In fact, the foliage of sage plants should not be permitted to grow too high but should be cut off at least two or three times a year. This results in a large number of side shoots, which, in turn, are especially full of flavor.

Basil is another important herb. It grows easily from seed into a plant about one foot high. It branches profusely, forming a compact, globular bush. The leaves of basil can be cut off as soon as the plants are big enough but should not be cut in quantities for drying until the flowers begin to open, as illustrated. After the first heavy cutting feed the plants well and they will continue to grow and put forth leaves profusely. Roots of strong plants can be potted for a winter's supply of seasoning.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE
 ON MANY occasions the cards will serve you faithfully if you will only give them a chance. Counting up the hand to see how many positive tricks are in sight, and then picking out the surest way to build the extras you need is the basic formula. When you then carry on in that manner, making the sound plays for your contract, you will often find that extra tricks are produced in the natural course of events.

Figuring out how a declarer could get himself set at that contract would be quite a puzzle in itself, after West led the heart 3. This declarer did it, however, almost entirely on his own and with the aid of only one bright play by a defender. In the East was Tobias Stone, one of the most brilliant of the new crop of national champion holders. When dummy played low on the heart 3, he felt sure from the bidding that South

Sprinkling Lawns, Gardens Taboo As Water Shortage Hits Cumberland

Plants Curtail Consumption, Pools Closed as Main Line Is Unable To Meet Demands

Police last evening were instructed to order the stoppage of sprinkling lawns and gardens within the city limits as a means of relieving Cumberland's critical water situation following the closing yesterday of the Celanese and Constitution park swimming pools and the curtailment of consumption at the plant of the Celanese Corporation of America and the Kelly-Springfield plant.

City officials explained that the critical situation was brought about when the nine-mile thirty-six inch supply line from Lakes Gordon and Koon was unable to meet the increased demands for water and the water in the Ridgedale and Fort Hill reservoirs reached such a low level that it was impossible to pump into the large supply tanks at those locations.

High Sections Are Dry
It was pointed out that residents in the highland section at the foot of Will's mountain have been out of water for several days due to the fact that the North End section is situated higher than the level of the water in the supply tanks.

Charles J. Bruce, superintendent of the Elvitt's Creek Water Company, said that the only way to relieve the situation is by co-operation on the part of industries and individuals in conserving and curtailing the use of water during the present emergency.

Bruce stated that the Fort Hill supply tank has a capacity of 500,000 gallons and water there is pumped from the reservoir once daily. The Ridgedale tank's capacity is 100,000 gallons and water is pumped from the reservoir three times a day.

"The two reservoirs hold about eleven million gallons but at the present time they are about eight million gallons short," Bruce declared.

Water shortage is the result of the hot spell of the past few days which has brought about an indiscriminate use of water for sprinkling lawns and gardens, which combined with the steady increase in the demands for water by local industries and swimming pools, has overtaxed the line from the source of supply which carries ten and a half million gallons of water into the city daily.

"Water in the reservoir must reach a level higher than the pumps before it can be pumped into the supply tanks and the reason for the shortage is that the water is now below the level of the pumps in both reservoirs."

Bruce said that the Celanese plant which has been consuming on an average of four and a half million gallons a day showed a cooperative spirit yesterday by reducing consumption to one and a half million gallons. The Kelly plant also curtailed consumption by approximately 150,000 gallons a day.

"We are concerned most at the present time with keeping the level in the reservoirs to supply the higher sections of the city with water," Bruce stated. "At the present time the pumps are sending into Cumberland all the pipeline will carry and with the proper operation the situation may be cleared up by early next week. Re-opening of the swimming pools will depend on the water situation."

Closed as Health Measure
The Constitution park pool was closed not only because of the water shortage, but also as a health measure. Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

Lodges Fill 100 Kit Bags for Soldiers

Elks and Woodmen Each Contribute Contents for Fifty Packets

One hundred kit bags for men in the army have been filled by the local Elks Lodge and Woodmen of the World partially meeting the lodges and clubs quota. Mrs. Jim McQuown, production chairman of the Red Cross, announced last night.

Each of the lodges has filled fifty kit bags to date. Mrs. McQuown said, adding that the contents of each includes stationery, cigarettes, sewing kit, pencil, razor blades, shoe laces, chewing gum and a novel.

The production committee of the Red Cross, Mrs. McQuown explained, is seeking assistance from lodges and clubs in this area in filling the bags. She added that 1,133 kit bags already have been sent to their destination after being filled through the efforts of the churches, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Eastern Star.

Six hundred bags remain to be filled, she said, adding that the production committee will be glad to accept aid from any other group. She pointed out that 800 packs of cigarettes have been donated by Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America. These are on display in the production rooms in the basement of the federal building.

Local Girl Becomes Bride of Oakland Man in England

Lieut. George Kerins, Jr., and Miss Lucille Houck Wed in London

One of the first Cumberland girls to begin overseas duty with the American Red Cross recreation corps is also the first Cumberland girl to marry in the eastern hemisphere.

Word has been received here of the marriage of Miss Lucille Houck, daughter of Mrs. Raymond D. Houck, LaVale, and First Lieut. George Kerins, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kerins, of Oakland, both serving with United States forces in England.

Miss Houck is a recreational director with the Red Cross and was sent to England several weeks ago where she now operates a clubmobile with three other Maryland girls. Prior to her entrance into Red Cross work, Miss Houck was a physical education instructor at Allegany high school. She is a graduate of Kingwood, W. Va., high school and the University of West Virginia.

Lieut. Kerins is a statistician for the United States Army Air Force, received his commission after basic training at several airfields in this country. He also attended a special class in statistics at Harvard university. He was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant after his arrival in England almost a year ago. The ceremony was performed Wednesday evening, June 9, in a Catholic church near London, with a chaplain from the Bronx, New York, officiating. The bride was attended in her summer uniform of the American Red Cross.

According to a few of the details received by the bridegroom's parents, the bride was attended by a group of officers and enlisted men with a reception at a London hotel. Lieut. and Mrs. Kerins wrote that soldiers at the post had baked a wedding cake and made some ice cream, the first they had tasted since arriving in England.

Following the ceremony, the couple had coffee with the priest, after which they were honored by a group of officers and enlisted men with a reception at a London hotel. Lieut. and Mrs. Kerins wrote that soldiers at the post had baked a wedding cake and made some ice cream, the first they had tasted since arriving in England.

Motorist Is Fined

Labor Unity Committee Backs Day Care Center for Working Mothers

A day care center, especially for working mothers commuting to the Celanese and Kelly plants, should be opened in the West Side School on Greene street and school buses should be used to furnish transportation, the new Child Welfare Committee of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, said last night.

The committee elected W. Henry Frazier of Cumberland Typographical Union 244 as chairman, and Mrs. Wenona Snyder of the CIO Women's Auxiliary as secretary.

Pay-as-You-Go Tax, Effective Next Week, Lets Few Get by 'Undeducted'

Only Escape Is To Work for Less than Fifteen Dollars a Week

The pay-as-you-go tax system is set up so that few individuals will have nothing deducted from their pay envelopes after July 1, which happens to be next Thursday. To escape paying any tax, a man would have to earn less than $15 a week, regardless of his family status or the number of his dependents.

If personal exemptions put you beyond the reach of the new twenty per cent withholding tax, a three per cent tax comes along and takes a bite of your wage or salary. The three per cent is a hangover from the five per cent Victory tax deduction that will be discontinued June 30.

The twenty per cent figure actually represents a revised Victory tax of three per cent and a seventeen per cent assessment which the treasury expects will approximate the amount normally yielded by the regular income tax.

The new system, called the "family status withholding exemption," amounts to $624 a year or $12 a week for single persons; $1,248 or $24 a week for married individuals; and $312 a year or $6 a week, for each dependent. This means that this much of your salary is exempt from the twenty per cent deduction.

But it doesn't mean you escape a tax if your income equals or is less than the exemptions. Suppose a married man with one child earns $30 a week. His weekly exemption would amount to $30 ($24 for being married and $6 for the child dependent). It appears that no deduction from his pay check should be made.

But this is where the three per cent Victory tax gets to work. In cases where family exemptions equal or are greater than the income, a straight Victory tax exemption of $12 a week is made and the balance is taxed three per cent. In the case above, the individual would owe three per cent of $18 or fifty-four cents.

Employers Get Tables
However, while it is best to be forewarned, you needn't be troubled by the mechanics of your tax computation. The Treasury department has prepared rate tables for employers that tell at a glance the amount of tax for all income levels, covering weekly, bi-weekly, semi-monthly and monthly and daily payroll periods.

Your tax deduction as set forth in the tables may be a few cents more or less than it would be by exact computation, as illustrated above, but it makes no difference since any gain or loss is evened (Continued on Page 9, Col. 6)

Besides committee and lodge reports, talks will be given at the opening meeting by Ernest B. Treat, chairman of committee on arrangements; Frank J. Davis, governor of Cumberland Lodge No. 271; Mayor Thomas F. Conlon; Robert Irvin, regional director of Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, Delaware and District of Columbia; and Albert H. Ladner, Jr., of Philadelphia, past supreme governor and general council.

Today's convention program will be concluded with the parade at 7 p. m., followed by dancing and entertainment at the Moose home.

Chamber of Commerce Directors Re-elect H. W. Smith Secretary

Board Takes Positive Stand against Federal Subsidies; Plan Annual Meeting

By unanimous vote, directors of the chamber of commerce re-elected Harold W. Smith as secretary of the organization for another year and reappointed Mrs. John L. Baggett as assistant secretary for a like term at their monthly meeting last night at which preparations were made for the annual meeting of the membership.

The board registered its appreciation of faithful and efficient services on the part of both.

The annual membership meeting is to be held July 27 at a place to be decided upon as wartime restrictions will permit and the arrangements were placed in the hands of the Membership Activities committee.

Will Choose Directors
At this meeting ten directors will be chosen for the places now held by William Claus, Roy W. Eves, Benjamin M. Kamens, Charles L. Kopp, P. E. Myers, C. A. Richards, W. Donald Smith, James C. Shriver, Arthur J. Weber and Harry A. Pitzer.

In accordance with the constitution and by-laws of the chamber, twice the number of directorships to be filled will be nominated in a mail referendum, and the members will select ten from the twenty nominees at the annual meeting.

The directors appointed Douglas R. Bowie, chairman; Miles G. Thompson and Harry B. Williams to serve as judges of the election.

A positive stand on the question of federal subsidies was taken by the board in a resolution, unanimously adopted, which is to be sent to the members of the Maryland delegation in Congress and to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with which the local chamber is affiliated.

The resolution opposes the chamber on record as "opposed to federal subsidies of all kinds in view of the fact that such subsidies already in effect have been ineffective in affording the relief sought."

A report of the Salvage committee showed the collection of 1,194,016 pounds of scrap during May. The secretary was instructed to send letters of thanks to Representatives J. Glenn Beall and Jennings Randolph, and to Charles B. Donaldson, airport director of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, for their attendance at the recent airport meeting here and their interest and help in connection with the development of the Cumberland municipal airport.

Desertion Is Charged
On a charge of desertion, Edgar Shoemaker filed a bill seeking absolute divorce from Louise Shoemaker. They were married June 21, 1936, and lived together until February 1943. No children were born of the marriage. Edward J. Ryan is counsel for the plaintiff.

Charging him with desertion, Genevieve Redman seeks an absolute divorce from Lewis Redman. They were married June 5, 1927, and three children were born of the marriage.

Mrs. Redman, who is represented by attorney Ryan, asks custody of the children and that the defendant pay counsel fees, and alimony for the support of the children.

Absolute Divorces Sought
Also on the charge of desertion, Elizabeth R. Eichhorn filed a bill of complaint against Richard E. Eichhorn. They were married June 22, 1934, and lived together until September, 1938. No children were born of the marriage.

Mrs. Eichhorn seeks a decree of absolute divorce and the right to resume her maiden name, Elizabeth Rank. She is represented by the law firm of Capper and Jenkins.

John T. Jeffrey of Lonaconing, filed suit for absolute divorce from Betty M. Jeffrey, Frostburg. They were married December 25, 1942, and lived together until June 8 of this year. No children were born of the marriage.
